London Hears That Both De Valera and Craig Have Agreed to Peace Parley

By International News Service.

London, June 27.—It was learned from an authoritative source this afternoon that the Irish peace conference will be held, the Central News announced.

The government is reported to have received information from Dublin and Belfast indicating that Eamon de Valera and Sir James Craig will both accept the invitation to come to London to confer with the British government.

Jan Christian Smuts, Premier of South Africa, who is in London attending the imperial conference, may be chosen to mediate between the factions in the Irish strife, it was learned this afternoon.

Colleagues of Premier Smuts declared that he had a keen insight into Ireland's troubles and would accept a direct invitation to mediate.

Directly questioned as to his willingness to serve as mediator, Premier Smuts evaded a definite answer, but expressed the greatest optimism over a satisfactory settlement of the Irish issue.

"The relations between the Irish and the British peoples are entering a new and most hopeful phase, in which I take the deepest interest," said General Smuts. "I hope that mediation will not be necessary."

The cabinet expects a reply from Eamon de Valera to Premier Lloyd George's invitation to come to Lon-

Soldiers Foil Attempt to Storm City Hall After Police Quit Duty

By International News Service.

Quebec, June 27.—Disorders broke out afresh today in the strike of city police and firemen and a mob attempted to march upon the City Hall, but was dispersed.

The rioters set out from the lower part of the city to storm the City Hall and the 22nd battalion, which is policing the city, was hastily called from barracks. The mob fled in terror as the soldiers appeared, but hundreds of street lights and plate glass windows were wantonly smashed.

The city has been without normal police and fire protection since Saturday when the policemen and firemen struck over a wage dispute. The policemen were satisfied with the increase which was promised them by the arbitration commission, but the firemen rejected the offer and decided to strike and the policemen quit in sympathy.

New policemen are being sworn in, forty having been added to the force since Sunday morning.

Gas consumers are now paying $1.60 a thousand cubic feet, an increase of 25 cents since August last. The rates for electricity are 12 cents per kilowatt hour, an advance of nine-tenths of a cent from February, 1920.

PATIENTS' LIVES IN PERIL

Trustees of Danvers Asylum Tell Governor Women's Buildings Are Unsafe

The lives of 250 aged women patients are in constant peril because of the serious danger of fire in the Middleton Colony buildings of the Danvers State Hospital, the trustees declared today in a letter to Governor Cox and the Governor's Council.

In an appeal for $21,200 for the immediate installation of an automatic fire-sprinkler system, the trustees said:

"The buildings are of wooden construction. They are connected by long wooden corridors an dfire would spread rapidly from one unit to another. This isolated group of buildings is situated about a mile away from the main hospital.

"The class of patients cared for at the colony are among the most helpless and dependent in the whole hospital. Two hundred and fifty women, many demented, are housed in this group of buildings. In case of serious fire, these demented women, lacking in initiative and understanding, would be exposed to perils of the most fearful character. The danger to life justifies the demand for the fullest protection against the possibilities of a fire catastrophe."

Unwise Economy to Cripple Navy, Poindexter Says

By WILLIS J. ABBOTT

Washington, June 27.—Senator Poindexter, who has the naval appropriation bill in charge, said today:

"While I grant that any recession from the Senate's original appropriations for the navy was forced upon us in conference, and although I opposed every such concession as long as I thought there was a chance of obtaining all we asked, I am still inclined to rejoice that we saved as much as we did.

"You must keep in mind that the country has been taught to expect a large measure of economy from this administration.

"It was unquestionably in deference to a demand of this character from their constituents that the House conferees fought so hard to cut down naval appropriations.

"But while I am not deaf to the nature of the demand from the people, nor blind to the fact that the appropriations have been cut down in response to that demand, I still hold these reductions to be unwise.

"Probably there will be no fight on the floor of either chamber to restore the higher figures, but from my point of view there is no real economy in

WORK STARTED AT HAMPTON

Rebuilding Already Begun at Beach Swept by $500,000 Blaze

Hampton Beach, N. H., June 27.—Hampton Beach today is recovering from the fire which yesterday destroyed eight hotels, fifteen cottages and apartment houses and as many stores and restaurants, causing a loss estimated at $500,000.

Four hundred guests at the hotels were forced to flee for their lives with only such belongings as they were able to pick up at a moment's notice.

Wealthy Summer visitors and members of the Board of Trade have come to the aid of the merchants whose stores were destroyed and a large force of men is already at work erecting a temporary postoffice and stores to replace those burned, particularly the two grocery stores, the only two on the beach.

The greater part of the loss was not covered by insurance, for the insurance companies refused to accept large risks on the wooden structures. Heavy stocks of goods laid in to last all season were practically uninsured. Wholesalers at Newburyport, Mass., and Portsmouth also are aiding by extending credit to the ruined merchants.

"We may be down, but we are not out," said William E. Raiton of Lawrence, owner of the Ferncroft dance hall. "I, for one, will start up again as quickly as possible." Other heavy losers expressed similar sentiments.

Frank Ring, owner of the Olympic Garage, found the cement foundation in good condition and declared that he would rebuild his structure as quickly as the lumber could be obtained.

"The fire was a severe blow, especially at the opening of the season, but I believe Hampton will recover quickly; the ravages will be repaired and the burned structures replaced with even better ones," said J. Frank Jamaa, president of the Board of Trade.

Freed is alleged to have found a revolver under the counter and to have pointed it at William in fun and pulled the trigger.

The boy believed to be dying is John F. Lynch, fifteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Lynch of No. 55 Columbia street, Cambridge. He was shot in the left breast by a twenty-two calibre revolver in the hands of his chum, John Skotz, fifteen years old, of No. 5 Columbia terrace, Cambridgeport, early yesterday.

Skotz was arraigned in the Cambridge District Court today on a charge of carrying a revolver without a permit. The case was put over until Saturday.

Friedman's death was probably caused by asphyxiation due to a glandular growth, according to Medical Examiner Leary.

Miss Curtis Now Bride of Prince Cantacuzene

Following a ceremony at the Greek Catholic Church, No. 6 Dearborn street, Roxbury, Miss Clarissa P. Curtis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pelham Curtis of No. 447 Beacon street, was married today for the second time in the Non-Sectarian Protestant Church at Nahant to Prince Michael Cantacuzene of the old Russian nobility.

The prince was the second of his house to take an American bride, his mother being Julia Dent Grant, granddaughter of General Ulysses S. Grant, ex-President of the United States.

Today's ceremony was attended by practically the same party that attended the wedding in the Greek Church. The marriage was a brilliant social event, and a fitting climax to the many interesting weddings that have taken place this month.

Prince Michel is Count of Speranskey, in addition to his major title, and is sometimes known as Prince Cantacuzene-Speranskey.

He is a refugee from Russia and has been attending Harvard, from which he was graduated this year.

Miss Dorothea Curtis Jordan, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor.

The bridesmaids were the Princess Bertha Cantacuzene, sister of the bridegroom, and the Misses Lena Turnbull, Rosanna Johnson, Penelope Curtis, Josephine Cogswell, Elizabeth Zerrahn and Mary Sidney.

Princess Ida Cantacuzene, sister of the Prince, and little Miss Bertha Palmer of Chicago, a first cousin, were flower girls.

Social leaders of New York, Boston and Chicago were at Nahant to attend the wedding, the number including the Potter Palmers of Chicago.

Prince Michel and his bride have not announced where they will spend their honeymoon.

Ultimately they hope to go to Russia and resume possession of the prince's hereditary possessions—a chateau at Moscow, a farm estate at Poltava, and mills in the industrial cities of middle and northern Russia.

There is little chance, however, that the princess will leave America, and her old associations immediately.

Nothing short of a return of the Romanoffs or the substitution of some other constitutional monarchy would permit the bridegroom's taking up his ancestral estates.

The debut of Miss Curtis was made in the Winter of 1917 at a ball given by Mrs. William Lindsey.

She is a member of the Chilton Club, Prince Michel is a member of the Hasty Pudding Club and other Harvard organizations.

Deny Theories Can Give Veterans Aid

By International News Service.

Washington, June 27.—Talk of the direction of soldier relief out of the hands of school teachers, labor agitators and impractical theorists and place it in the hands of the disabled veterans themselves, who understand the problem, was heard here today.

That was the keynote sounded today by hundreds of disabled veterans of the country at the first annual convention of the National Disabled Soldiers' League.

The convention opened in Central High School with an address by George H. Gillis, the retiring national commander, who said: "The veterans themselves understand their own problems far better than 'so-called teachers and labor agitators,' and if they loved their country well enough to sacrifice their limbs and eyes for it they certainly love it well enough to save its money."

FAGAN'S $1,500,000 BRIDE GOES TO RENO; DIVORCE IS HINTED

ELOPERS SEPARATED FOR YEAR

Friends of Young Couple Wondering What Has Happened to Their Romance

Mrs. Katherine Stevens Fagan, "infant" bride of Richard Fagan, a Dartmouth student, and heiress to the $1,500,000 estate of the late Calvin Armory Stevens, "the recluse of Broad street," New York, has gone to Reno.

Friends of the two romantic young people who eloped in April last, and then were "separated by their parents for a year," are wondering whether she has gone there to join the divorce colony.

Her mother says "there is nothing to the trip." William R. Fagan, father of the groom, is of the same opinion.

"If they are separated or are seeking to annul the marriage they rushed into so short a time ago, it is news to me," he said. "I do not know where my son is, or what his plans are."

Mrs. Jessie I. Stevens, mother of the millionaire bride, says it is none of her business. She explains that her young daughter went to Reno with an older sister, Mrs. De Souza, who has taken her son there "for his health."

WERE MARRIED SECRETLY.

Mrs. Fagan is eighteen years of age. She was married secretly in Hanover, N. H., to young "Dick" Fagan, when the latter slipped out from college long enough to say "I do" at the Episcopal Church in that town.

The marriage was secret until a few days later when the girl's mother petitioned the Surrogate Court at Brooklyn to allow her $10,000 from the Stevens estate to support her "infant" daughter "pending her entry to a respectable person of high social standing."

She got the $10,000 and then it was announced that the elopers were to separate for a year so that they could finish their educations.

HONEYMOON IN BOSTON.

Fagan and his bride came to Boston for their honeymoon, rebelling at the separation plan of their parents. To a Boston American reporter the youthful bridegroom declared that "a man's marriage is more important than his education."

"We were married in a perfectly dignified manner," he said. "Mrs. Fagan's mother wants us to separate because we are too young to be married. That's pretty hard for a man who has just married the girl of his choice."

Then they left Boston and until today it was believed that they were living together and that all interest in the romantic match were satisfied.

POLL TAX BILLS ARE DISTRIBUTED

Day men of the Boston police department today received the distribution of $5 tax bills, which started Saturday after a considerable delay, owing to the excessive heavy registration. The patrolmen were instructed to return to police headquarters every poll tax made out to a person who had moved while these arrangements were out of town were to be sent back to the collector's office.

John J. Flagg, twenty-five years old, of Hamilton, Ohio, and Dorchester, has just completed a sentence in Ohio for automobile stealing, was returned to this city today by Inspector Carney.

Flagg defaulted in $6,000 bail on which he was being held here in connection with a charge of the larceny of two automobiles in 1919.

He received a sentence of from one to five years in Ohio and was arrested at the jail door when paroled last week.

AUTO REPLACES OLD POLICE VAN

Each prisoner given a jail sentence in the East Boston Court after July 1 will receive a free ride in an automobile from the courthouse to the jail as a result of a recent order of Police Commissioner Curtis abolishing the old horse-drawn van that has been doing this work. William S. Moore, for twenty-six years driver of the team, and Patrick J. McAuliffe, his assistant for twelve years, will have to go back patrolling beats as a result of the high cost of horse feed.

RICH WOMEN AID SLAYER'S WIFE

Laud Her for Betraying Husband Who Admits Killing Wealthy Widow

New York, June 27.—The great sensation made by Mrs. Berta Kalal in turning over the father of her unborn baby for possible execution, as the slayer of Mrs. Minnie S. Bertlett, might be brought to justice, has touched the heart of the wealthy social residents of Meadowbrook and the Wheatley Hills.

The confessed and confessed slayer of the wealthy West Hempstead widow, in his cell in the Nassau county jail, watched evidently by two guards, heaps abuse upon the wife who betrayed him to the authorities.

Two of the first to offer assistance to the unfortunate wife of the confessed slayer and her two little children are Mrs. Morgan Belmont and Mrs. Leo L. F. Wanner.

The two women, with several other equally prominent members of their set in society, went to the little wooden shack in which Mrs. Kinzler was located, and announced that they would provide for her. They assigned temporary assistance.

Mrs. Belmont went in and shook the hand of the little Polish woman and greeted her for the great sacrifice she made.

Mrs. Wanner repeated the opinion expressed by Mrs. Belmont and added:

"I am very glad to learn that District Attorney Weeks has come to the conclusion that the wife is the person who is entitled to the $1,000 reward which was offered for the arrest and conviction of the brutal killer of Mrs. Bartlett."

WINE FETE ENDS PARIS SEASON

Windup Ball Lasts Long After Dawn; $3,000,000 Wagered on Grand Prix

By C. F. BERTELLI.
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

Paris, June 27.—In scenes of champagne, with a frenzy of gambling and a plethora of last minute styles, the Paris "grand season" which has not been equalled for brilliance and extravagance since the second empire, ended Sunday.

The closing feature was the International Grand Prix, in which American, English and French horses and jockeys competed.

The windup ball given Saturday night at the Duchess Decaze's Opera, lasted until long after dawn when dozens of tired and jaded couples could be seen at the Pre Catalan farm, in the Bois De Boulogne, sipping milk and soda.

The prices charged at the ball in the name of charity beat all records. Tea, ice cream and cake were each three dollars. Wine could be had at any price that was bid and no limit was found to the charges for dinners.

The Grand Prix, which is the year's most important race in Europe, and which was worth a half million francs, was an unprecedented orgy of gambling, the total wagered on this single race being estimated at approximately $2,000,000. Thousands were unable to back the horses of their fancy owing to the immense throngs jammed about the betting booths.

The crowd was estimated at considerably more than half of the total population of Paris. It included several thousand American tourists. There was such an outpouring of society that the parade of maskins reporting the latest Rue de la Paix innovations was completely swamped.

$15,000 FIRE IN BACK BAY BUILDING

A fire in the three-story brick building at No. 21 Stanhope street, Back Bay, gave firemen a stiff three hours' battle and caused $15,000 damage.

The building, which is occupied by Lewis F. Perry Sons Company, painters and decorators, was ruined on the third and fourth floors, and flames were bursting from the roof when firemen arrived.

Adjacent buildings occupied by the Parks Machine Picture Exchange, the Auto Accessory Service Welding Company, the Undadelid Lamb and Rag Company.

WIFE WON ON BET IS COSTLY

Broker Made $2,000 When She Said "Yes"; Now Must Pay $9,000 Yearly Alimony

Chicago, June 27. Gordon C. Thorne, millionaire broker, who married Miss Virginia Milner on a $2,000 bet, found out today that his winning was a loss.

Hereafter he will be compelled to pay her $9,000 a year alimony. This sum was provided in the decree of divorce which she won.

Thorne and Miss Milner had been childhood friends. They met again at the Ritz Carlton in New York by chance four years ago.

Thorne bet his friend Townsend Notcher $2,000 he would marry her within a year. Notcher didn't believe the broker could win the pretty daughter of the president of the Standard Can Company. So on the day of the wedding he paid Thorne $2,000 in one dollar bills. Now Thorne will pay it out many times over.

"Will $750 a month be enough alimony for you?" asked Judge Lewis of the young woman when that interesting phase of the divorce proceedings was reached today.

Miss Milner, who has resumed her maiden name, smiled back at the judge and replied:

"I will try to get along on it."

Then the judge warned her that she must be "a good girl" or he will reduce the amount.

Mrs. Thorne left her husband last April when his name became connected with that of Miss Mary Lygo, a dancing girl.

MacGruder Denies He Emulated Sims

By International News Service.

Paris, June 27.—Another American naval officer has adopted the outspoken methods of Admiral Sims, according to L'Homme Libre today.

Rear Admiral T. H. MacGruder, U. S. A., a naval attache to the American embassy, is quoted by the newspaper as saying at the inauguration of the American Home for Convalescent Consumptives: "What-ever comes, the United States always will come to the aid of France if France should be attacked. Our ambassador could not tell you, but I can. My words do not need to be diplomatic."

MacGruder, when seen by a representative of the International News Service this afternoon, was greatly disturbed over the version of his remarks printed in L'Homme Libre.

"I did not say what L'Homme Libre credits me with as saying at all," said the naval officer. "I made an impromptu speech, mentioning general support if France is attacked, but made no statement that my words did not need to be diplomatic."

SACCO TRIAL TO END THIS WEEK

Judge Thayer Tells Counsel They Must Wind Up Case by Saturday

Judge Webster Thayer in Dedham Superior Court today served notice on counsel that the Sacco-Vanzetti murder trial must end this week. It has already lasted a month.

Judge Thayer stated that Chief Justice Aiken has ordered the case wound up by Saturday. Longer sessions may be held.

Counsel for Sacco and Vanzetti, charged with the slaying of Paymaster Parmenter and Guard Berardelli, announced the rest of the defendants would probably take the stand Wednesday.

Dominic de Boni today testified that the man he saw working on an automobile in South Braintree just before the shooting was light haired and sickly looking.

This witness said he saw another man of dark complexion and heavy build get into the machine. Domiale was cross-questioned at length.

Mrs. Jennie Novelli of Quincy was another witness today.

Cesidio Magharelli said he saw three men in the "murder car" after the shooting. He said the chauffeur was "slim and light-pale-like"; the man sitting beside him was "dark and heavily built" and the man in the rear was light. He said the defendants were not the men he saw.

Donato Di Boni of Quincy, a second cousin, said he saw five men in the fleeing "murder car." He said the defendants were not the men he saw at the front seat.

"I could not see them good," he said, referring to the three men in the rear seat.

Woman Is Driven to Crime by Inherited Brain Cells, Physician Declares

The woman who runs at random upon society, and lands in court, maybe has done wrong, but blame her inherited germ cells more than the girl herself.

There is no personal responsibility, either for genius, for evil doing or for high philanthropy. Study inherited proclivities of brain cells, bodily glands, gonads, thyroids and then place responsibility.

A man all his life is imprisoned within the fortress of his confining anatomy. To talk of his being a free agent is really pitiful.

Many a man has been sent to the penitentiary for a fault lay with brain, imperfectly working, or glands over-secreting.—Pen and Personal Accountability, by Dr. Arthur D. Bush.

By HAZEL CANNING.

A man may be as old as he feels; a woman as old as she looks; but both men and women are as old-countable as their glands of their brains and their inherited anatomy, make them.

This is the contention of a New England authority. Dr. Arthur D. Bush, formerly a physician of Worcester, Mass., recently Dr. Bush has served on the faculty of the Universities of North Dakota and Vermont.

He has made physical research-es, to determine how far the irresponsible man about town, slave to his evil passions, is responsible for the wreckage they spread. And, in a thesis, "Accountability," he reaches the conclusion that man is directly accountable for his acts, than many have thought.

BLAME BRAIN CELLS.

"Blame the brain cells! Blame his inherited anatomy!" is what Dr. Bush advises. And he points out:

"Each person born upon the earth has a definite anatomical development. There are no possibilities outside his own particular inheritance.

"His future is largely determined once he is born, and whatever new requirements he may attain, result merely from the formation of new contacts between brain cells, all possessed at the individual birth.

Dr. Bush then explains various mental expressions. For instance, the linguist.

MAY BECOME LINGUIST.

"If there is a rich linking up of the temporal area the part of the brain where the temporal lobe of individual has the anatomical endowment for the unusual appreciation of sounds. If this area is linked up with the areas dominating speech and language, the child may easily become a linguist."

Dr. Bush contrasts the inherited processes which make the dolt, on one hand, and the genius on the other. The genius is a genius largely because he is in possession of an anatomical development that makes achievement possible; perhaps the dolt is a dolt chiefly because his cerebral inheritance is such only as to permit of dolthood.

"Neither philosopher nor the peasant chose his cellular inheritance nor his developmental environment; to this extent, at least, he is the helpless victim of circumstance.

MAN NOT MORALLY FREE.

"Perhaps there is no limit to his educative possibilities, but even his education is not of his choosing, nor direction. Shall he, then, be held strictly accountable? Man is not morally or physically free; he is hedged around and about by an anatomical constitution which was determined before his birth, and from whose limitations he cannot escape.

"Evolution may be a struggle toward the light, but freedom for the race has not yet been attained.

"Accountability is always upon society. The specifications of an individual may be ascertained; the weakness of an individual may be uncovered and subtly directed; education, both moral and mental, may be adapted to particular needs.

"Our laws of reprisal and punishment should be changing laws of prevention and development. Certainly society should be more tolerant towards the victims of circumstances, and less tolerant of all that makes for crime and infirmity.

INFANT IS MARKED.

"The infant comes into the world with traces on its nervous organization of all the great experiences through which its ancestral race has passed.

"Later some of these traces may appear in the form of instinctive urgings, emotional reflexes, primitive passions. The actions of any individual have a deeper motivation than he may ever know or society may recognize; yet these echoes from out the racial past largely determine conduct, and are vital factors in the true weighing of accountability."

Most Extravagant Woman in World Spends $5,000,000 in Three Weeks

(The facts concerning Mrs. Smith Wilkinson are so amazing that the editor of Universal Service, after receiving the first dispatches concerning her, caused Mr. G. F. Bertelli, universal's Paris correspondent, to make a thorough re-investigation. Today's news is the result of a most searching inquiry.—Ed.)

By G. F. BERTELLI.
Universal Service $t aff Correspondent.

Paris, June 27.—In the past few months a name hitherto heard seldom, if ever, has shot like a dazzling shaft of light across the consciousness of the civilized world.

The name is that of Mrs. Smith Wilkinson.

She actually has put to shame "the man who broke the bank at Monte Carlo."

The extravagance of the far-famed Count of Monte Cristo is rank penury and beggary when her matchless skill at spending money. Her path is sharked by a blizzard of gold pieces.

IS A REAL WOMAN.

Who is this gorgeous person who so suddenly has cast into dim shade all the great spendthrifts of history and of fiction—made them "also ran" in the expressive language of the race track?

Is she a myth?

She's nothing of the sort. She's a woman in the flesh—in quite a lot of it in fact. And now that she's back in her home in Nottingham, England, after having got rid of five million dollars in three weeks, guess what she is planning to do next?

She's going to New York next Winter.

What's in store for New York may be imagined by the question to your correspondent by "the most extravagant woman in the world" that she really hadn't cut loose in Paris at all. Five millions in three weeks? Pouf! She was travelling under wraps.

A stranger vessel than that which carried the Empress Eugenie on the old world will bear Mrs. Smith Wilkinson to the new. Her finest accommodations on the fastest liners won't answer.

Not enough time intervenes for a shipyard to turn out anything special in the way of a yacht, so Mrs. W. Kilkinson plans to buy the fanciest article of the sort which happens to be on the market the week before her sailing.

CARRIES HER OWN SHOP.

A complete dressmaking establishment will be installed aboard the yacht. It will be of sufficient size to keep fifty staff models passing in dress parade before the extraordinary woman whom blase Paris calls after all the queens of her, "Madame Monte Cristo Anglaise."

All of this may sound like a fairy tale. But it isn't.

Te bare facts of the life of this remarkable woman, at least, are of general knowledge. She lives in Nottingham, England, inherited more than a million pounds from her first husband and since his death has been married to two youngsters of exceptionable dealers and owners of fine motor cars. She said:

"I wish to rent five limousines indefinitely. You will please have them upholstered for me.

"One I should like to have in green and gold and another in rose. Then, say another in white; a fourth in blue and the last in a rich red."

"But, madam, the cost"—

COST NO CONSEQUENCE.

"The cost, naturally, is of no consequence. You will execute the order?"

Before she left Mrs. Smith Wilkinson spoke very frankly to the Universal Service correspondent, who by that time had drawn up the accompanying estimate of the expenses of her three-week visit.

"It does look quite preposterous on paper. But I can afford it. All my life I have looked forward to a day when I should out loose. That day has come. That is all.

"I had a fortune to start with. In war speculations I was exceedingly fortunate. Today my income is about $30,000,000 in your money. Try as I will I cannot spend as fast as I acquire. Yet I am determined to die poor.

MIND IN NEW YORK.

"My mind is occupied now chiefly with plans for my visit to New York and other cities of America of which I have heard. I shall make the voyage in my own yacht, carrying about fifty mannikins.

"Tell them in New York that I shall show them real extravagance.

"Already negotiating for a fine residence in Fifth avenue. This I shall decorate in accordance with my own taste.

"For instance, I probably shall install a bathtub of solid gold, such as I have in my home in Nottingham. I shall probably use my present diamond-studded dinner service, however.

"I have heard it said that people call my extravagance 'criminal.' I wish to ask them whether it is the spender or the miser who makes the world go 'round?"

DROWNS AFTER FALL IN WELL

SAYS EDISON IS GREAT MEDIUM

Spiritual Leader Declares Ghosts Invented Movies and Phonographs

New York, June 27.—Ghosts invented phonographs, movies, electric lights and player pianos, and Thomas A. Edison is the greatest spiritualist medium the world has ever known, according to leaders of the Spiritualist convention which has just closed its annual meeting at the Waldorf.

This astonishing view was elicited from the medium, John Slater, when non-Spiritualists at the public seance commented on the puerility and banality of the "messages" which were being received.

Here are some of the choice bits of advice and wisdom from the spirit world that were uttered:

"Grandma says you were the best boy she ever knew.

"Tilla Wheeler Wilcox was a great poet.

"Tomorrow will be a new day.

"Don't worry over what is past and gone.

"I'm very happy with grandma and auntie.

"Do your best and don't be discouraged."

The only positive note was struck when G. W. Bentley, a medium of Montclair, N. J., said:

"If you are true spiritualists you will no longer allow your children to attend the orthodox churches and schools where they are corrupted with false doctrines and led to sorrow, darkness and disease."

The audience was one of the most remarkable ever gathered in an American ballroom. Caucasians, Chinese, Japanese, negroes, Indians sat side by side on terms of intimate equality.

Claim Jap Census in California Wrong

Washington, June 27.—California citizens, in a telegram received by Senator Johnson of that State, protested against the Census Bureau's figures on the Japanese population of California.

The Bureau's estimate of the Japanese population of California was 71,000, while the State Bureau of Vital Statistics in that State counted 169,000 Japanese there, the telegram said.

FOUL PLAY CAUSE OF 11 DEATHS

Arrest Near in Probe of Mysterious Fire in Kentucky Mountain Tragedy

Mayfield, Ky., June 26.—County officials, spurred by public opinion, are making desperate efforts to uncover the grim story back of the death of eleven men, women and children in a mysterious fire in the Lawrence-Drew cottage in the foothills.

There is no longer any doubt that there was foul play. A coroner's jury so found, but could not state what quarter it came from. Were the Drew and Lawrence families, occupying the same house, wiped out by some savage feudist? Or was the destruction the work of a maniac. Others believed that it might have been the result of a fight between members of the two households.

Sheriff McClain announced today an arrest might be made.

He has unearthed a few facts. He knows that about 2 o'clock before the fire some sort visited the Lawrence-Drew cottage somebody there was talking with somebody else, a stranger. At midnight shots were heard from the direction of the cottage. Women and children were screaming. Almost immediately the low house blazed up and when neighbors arrived it was a pile of ashes. The house was located in wild hill country, not unusual to crimes of violence.

what has been done. I cannot see any economy in crippling the navy.

"More than that, by this check to the development of our navy the country is made to face a very real menace.

"I am no alarmist, nor am I seeking to prophesy evil. But no one with an international viewpoint can be unaware that conditions in the world are not such as assure a long and uninterrupted peace.

"Japan, a far smaller and poorer nation than the United States, is spending more money today, measured by its results, on naval construction than is the United States.

"The latest Japanese dreadnaught to be put in commission exceeds in weight of metal and in speed any American man-of-war afloat.

"The latest naval information credits Japan with having on the stocks six battleships and four battle cruisers, besides having seven battleships and three cruisers authorized.

"One phase of the bill, as it comes from the compromise committee, which I especially deplore, is the omission of the provision for the development of a naval base on the island of Guam.

"I regard this as vital to our safety in the Pacific. And I regard the Pacific as the region in which it is most important that we should have complete preparation. There is some reason to hope that this end may yet be attained."

Senator Poindexter, although not the chairman of the Senate committee, has had charge of this bill in its progress through the Senate and the conference committee.

Another submarine of the K class was lost in a mysterious manner while on route for the Mediterranean. She sank not far from the Irish coast and no trace of her was ever found. It was reported at the time that Sinn Feiners may have been responsible, but the admiralty scouted a theory.

Submarines of the K cla s from two to sixteen displace 2,000 tons and carry c ews of fifty-five men. Each is equipped with eight torpedo tubes.

Motion Picture News

By FRIEDA DAVIS

Tom Mix's first stop when he reached New York last week was at the City Hall, where he went to inform Mayor Hylan that he had come to look over his city. The mayor went out on the steps to grind out a few feet of film while Mix posed with some of his admirers.

By FRIEDA DAVIS.

A CURIOUS question in regard to the movies has come up in New York. A California musical production, "Sun-Kist," presented by Pandro and Marco, two West coast favorites, is playing at the San Harris Theatre. In their revue they use a fictitious movie company as the base of a number of comedy situations, the Rainbow Company.

There is, as a matter of fact, a real Rainbow Company, headed by Fred Roberts, and this concern resents strongly the manner in which the stage Rainbow Company conducts business. Mr. Roberts has started suit against the theatrical production on the grounds of libel and slander. Mr. Marco denied that there was any intention to "hit off" any concern or individuals in the motion picture industry, claiming that the similarity of the names "Rainbow" was purely accidental.

This brings to mind the theatrical laws of England in which an individual can sue a producer if a character in a piece bears the same name as his. It is for this reason that we find such unusual names given the characters in English plays. Whether this holds good for the movies over there or not, I cannot say.

FANNIE HURST'S SUCCESS

The real worth of Fannie Hurst's stories are cropping out. Her work starts out as a short story; then it becomes a novel; then the film becomes a play and a production.

FANNIE HURST

It happened with "Humoresque" and now the first scenes of this routine. First a popular fiction tale, it was filmed by International. Now it is being adapted to the footlights by Hartley Manners, who played with Lourette Taylor in the mother role, portrayed on the screen by Vera Gordon.

Another story, "Back Pay," has just been filmed by International. Frank Borzage directed the production and Matt Moore and Seena Owen play the leading parts. A. H. Woods will produce it in New York in the Fall, with Helen Mc-Kellar the starring role. "Humoresque," a story, has been bought by Sam Harris, who plans to stage it during the coming Winter.

NEWS OF THE DAY FIGURES.

TRUTH makes as good a story as fiction, contends William Hart, who, with A. M. Putnam is producing a series of short-reel films of dramas. At present they are working on the story of a murder that was given great publicity in New York a few months ago.

The murder mystery has not as yet been solved by the police, but the picture producers have worked out a spectacular and logical ending. The first production has been finished and they are starting work on a second.

PAULINE FREDERICK'S RODEO.

PAULINE FREDERICK

One of the first things Pauline Frederick did when she reached Hollywood after a visit to business conference in New York was to stage a rodeo and press on her large place near the Robertson-Cole studio.

She arranged a Wild West show in which Tom Mix, Buck Jones and the other "rough-riding" actors took part. Will Rogers was the star of the roping contest, and Miss Frederick herself won several of the riding prizes. Among the guests were Louise Glaum, Irene, Rich, Mr. and Mrs. George Beban, King Vidor and Florence Vidor, Mabel Normand, Lowell Sherman and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Moore.

GUY BATES POST SIGNS.

ASSOCIATED First National isn't letting the grass grow under its feet in regard to productions for the coming year. Already plans have been made to film the famous stage successes, "Omar, the Tentmaker," and "The Masquerader," both of which were played on Broadway with Guy Bates Post in the title roles.

Mr. Post has been signed up to play in the screen version of his successes and will be directed by James Young. The productions will be supervised by Richard Walton Tully, the author.

RUBYE DE REMER BUSY

RUBYE DE REMER

RUBYE DE REMER flits constantly about the country that it is hard to keep track of her. After finishing a picture in the East she hurried to the West coast, to appear in "The Passerby" at the Ignition Studios in Hollywood. The film is being directed by Edward Sloman.

HAYAKAWA HERE, TOO

ANOTHER visitor in the East at present is Sessue Hayakawa, the Japanese actor, who reached New York early this week with his wife, Tsuru Aoki. Hayakawa has just recovered from several weeks' illness and has been ordered a change and a rest by his physician.

BY WAY of rest he will spend this week in the following manner: Today he will go to Washington to call on President Harding and on the Japanese Ambassador. Wednesday he will go to Atlantic City as a guest of the Motion Picture Owners' Association of New York. Thursday he will have a round of golf with King Lardner, and on Saturday he will be R. S. Cole's guest at the Carpentier-Dempsey fight.

CAMERA CLICKS.

THOMAS MOTT OSBORNE, the famous head of Sing Sing, is making preparations to exploit his picture "The Right Way." The picture is booked for an early showing in Boston.

BULL MONTANA will play the role of Paprika in David Hulbert's new feature, "Ring-Bang-Boom," which will be directed by Fred J. Butler, father of the star.

EDDIE POLO is turning out another two-reeler at Universal City in which he again plays the role of "Cyclone" Smith, the cowboy. Jay Marchant is directing the production, while Kathleen Meyers appears as the leading woman.

PAULINE FREDERICK wears a bobbed wig for the first time in her next Robertson-Cole picture, "Zaza." In this film she plays two roles, one a society woman and the other a drug fiend.

BIG VICTORY FOR MRS. STILLMAN

Dr. Russell's Testimony, One of Letters, Banker's Allusion to Guy, Ruled Out by Beauvais, for further consideration.

Dr. Russell came to the aid of Stillman early in the referee's hearings. He testified to certain things which he said Mrs. Stillman had confided to him when he was treating her and his testimony was admitted with reservation over the strenuous objections of attorneys for the latter, who insisted that it was privileged as between a physician and patient.

The so-called Beauvais letter, stricken from the record is the one which Bernard Kelly, formerly superintendent of the Stillman estate at Pleasantville, testified he found on the writing desk of Mrs. Stillman. Stillman testified at one of the first referee hearings held here. When asked how many children he had he replied three, and named them, omitting the name of Guy, whom he insists is the son of Beauvais, the guide. Hearings in the case will be resumed Wednesday next.

Will Describe Life In Stillman "Bower"

New York, June 27.—Vivid glimpses of James A. Stillman in the bower of love that he maintained on Eighty-sixth street will be given through three important witnesses at the celebrated divorce proceedings.

All three witnesses will testify for Mrs. Anne Urquhart Stillman regarding the financier's affairs de amore with Florence Leeds, the show girl of the case.

Here is what the trained nurse who cared for Guy in the bower on the seventh floor of No. 64 East Eighty-sixth street said:

"I have often been in the bed room occupied by both Mr. and Mrs. Leeds, and have seen Mr. Leeds in pajamas and dressing gown, while Mrs. Leeds wore a pretty negligee. I have seen them playing with the baby, Guy, who had been sent in, early in the morning.

A chauffeur will testify to driving Mrs. Leeds to Fifth avenue stores and to the co-operative apartment house at No. 969 Park avenue. This is the building in which Mrs. Stillman intends to prove that Stillman presented to the show girl with $17,500 extra for decorating it.

A physician witness will testify as to the circumstances surrounding the birth of Jay Leeds, the child in dispute's interest in the infant. He will also state that "Mr. Leeds" sometimes used the name "Peck" in telephone conversations.

GLOUCESTER GETS COAL "SPITE BILL"

Gloucester, June 27.—Because the city of Gloucester, sickened at being made the target for exorbitant prices of coal, went into the open market and purchased at the mines their Winter's supply of fuel, it is alleged that the Metropolitan Coal Company decided to charge the city rental for the use of their dock where coal is one of the so-called city sewers.

A bill calling for $600 rental for six years was put in for the city and $100 a year for the police building were pending January 1, at this year, was accompanied by a letter.

ASSAILS COURSE OF 'DRY' MEN

Former Counsel of Commissioner Says Country Drifts to "Prohibition Anarchy"

Washington, June 27.—"The country is drifting towards prohibition anarchy," Alfred H. Van Buren of Kingston, N. Y., who has resigned as chief counsel to the federal prohibition commissioner, declared here today.

Opposing the passage by Congress of the Volstead resolution prohibiting beer for medicinal use, Van Buren asserted that the original purpose of the prohibition act has been distorted beyond recognition.

Detailing "the extremes to which Congress has carried the act," Van Buren declared that "when the people realized (and they are just beginning to realize) that the practice of medicine, pharmacy, chemistry and even religion was affected, surprise and consternation prevailed, which in many sections have given way to resentment and indignation.

"From all over the country," he continued, "professional and business men, ardent supporters of prohibition against beverage liquors, generous contributors to the cause and among the dryest of the drys, are raising their voices in vigorous protest against the encroachment upon rights guaranteed in the pursuit of lawful occupation."

Plea for Agriculture by Cox and Lodge

Springfield, June 27.—Growing need for agricultural development in New England is stressed in letters from Governor Cox and Senator Lodge to the Eastern States Agricultural and Industrial League. In his letter Governor Cox says:

"I am convinced that if New England is to prosper industrially the men engaged in our great industries must turn their attention to the need of stimulating agriculture in New England."

Senator Lodge, who is a member of the League, urges the need of immediate steps for the development of agriculture in the Eastern States.

THE sports note in Summer tailleurs is expressed to advantage in two models sketched near the golf course at Le Touquet. At the left blue crepe de chine is striped lengthwise from collar to skirt edge, with braid in a matching shade, and from the waist line to a little below the hips the braid is applied laterally as well, giving the effect of a girdle. The long, moderately wide sleeves are braided from elbow to wrist. Uncurled ostrich covers the crown of the black straw toque.

BLACK satin cire distinguishes a decidedly smart light gray flannel tailleur, piping all the edges. The high-collared waist-coat of white flannel is similarly treated and a black ribbon cravat used. The hat is of soft black felt and the gray gauntlets have their cuffs figured in black kid.

EGGS IN STORAGE SHOW GAIN

State Warehouses Now Hold 15,000,000 Dozen—Butter and Meat Decrease

Thirty million pounds of butter, poultry and meat and 15,000,000 dozen eggs were in the cold storage warehouses of the state at the beginning of the month, Dr. Herman C. Lythgoe, chief of the State Division of Food and Drugs, has said today.

There were in storage for each resident of the State, forty-nine eggs, 5 2-3 pounds of butter, ¼ pound of poultry, 1¾ pounds of beef, four pounds of pork and 2-3 pounds of lamb.

During the past month, meat and poultry holdings in storage decreased 1,000,000 pounds each, butter went up 1,000,000 pounds and the egg storage jumped by 2,500,000 dozen. Dr. Lythgoe gave out these figures:

	1921	1920	1919
Eggs, dozens	15,056,000	12,837,240	16,126,280

KEEP GUARD ON MALDEN STILL

Dry Agents to Maintain Vigil Until Search Warrant Is Procured

The "dry-guard" watch is still on duty at Malden.

Like sentries on duty in war time, the eighteen agents of Boston prohibition headquarters, divided into two shifts of nine men each, kept their vigil through the day and night over No. 79 Irving street, where, they say, are three stills which they cannot touch because of Commissioner Hayes' refusal to issue a search warrant.

Today Prohibition Enforcement Agent O'Donnell will again attempt to get the necessary warrant, and if forthcoming, the guards will go into the house to investigate the stories of wholesale moonshining.

Guarding the house during the day was no sinecure for the dry agents. Thousands of curiously seekers, having read of the peculiar situation, visited the scene. At one part of the day the street became almost jammed with automobiles.

Agent O'Donnell says the guard will continue until he gets the necessary papers to raid the house.

The men who hired the part of the house in which the huge stills are supposed to be located are not believed to be inside.

A large number of police officials attended the trial. Mrs. Quitt, widow of the slain man, was also present. Steinhauser, in officer's clothing, watched proceedings calmly.

Quitt, alleged to have been a bootlegger, was shot and killed on the morning of April 30, in a row over a bottle of whiskey, according to the police. They declared that Quitt had sold liquor to the policeman, who was in civilian clothing. They said Quitt was attempting to secure the evidence from Steinhauser when the latter drew his revolver and shot him.

HUB MAN HELD IN MOONSHINE DEAL

Methuen, June 27.—The fact that William Kane, a Boston overseas veteran, had traded a highly-prized cigarette case which he procured in France for a quart of moonshine, led to his appearance in Methuen police court, before Judge Albion G. Pierce. Charges of drunkenness and vagrancy were lodged against the Boston man, who said that a bag of automobile tools found in his possession had been picked up on the street. The court doubted the story about the finding of the tools and continued the case until today for disposition.

Her sister laying on a couch was thrown off and her eyesight affected. Both women are under the care of a physician.

Rules of Song Title Test

The Boston American Songs of the World Title Test is a test of skill and judgment open to all readers of the Boston American, irrespective of age, living in any city or town in New England or Canada.

Two hundred and twenty cash awards will be given by this newspaper to the readers who send in the largest number of correct titles to the 60 Test Pictures published on any such day consecutively (Sundays excepted) in the Boston American.

All employees of the Boston American and their families are positively barred from participating in this contest.

The Test will consist of 60 pictures, each to be published on a week day, requiring only to be printed one each day in the Boston American, from the first picture on Wednesday, June 29, 1921.

No coupon in any other contest which may be published at the same time as this one may be run by the Boston American will not be used in this contest, nor will it be valid.

Every participant or any of all members of any family or household may send only ONE TITLE to each picture, and no more than one award will be given any one person, family or household.

Each and every one is to write only one title on the coupon furnished by the Boston American on or a copy of same in form of itself, accompanied either by the original coupon or the Boston American, of a neat or small copy thereof, and must have the name, address and number of the participant in each title blank.

Do not send your titles in "list" form, i. e., do not write titles under one another on a piece of paper.

Should two or more get complete sets of correct titles, awards will be given to the person submitting the nearest correct solutions, all in strict accordance with these rules.

In case of a tie awards will be made on the basis of the neatness, general appearance and correctness of the solutions. Should a tie then exist, duplicate awards will be made.

Under no circumstances should participants send in their titles before the end of the contest.

Titles must be delivered to the Boston American title headquarters, at No. 90 Summer street, Boston 9, Mass., either by mail or in person, within the specified time limit.

All envelopes or packages containing titles should be addressed to the Song Title Editor, Test Dept., No. 90 Summer street, Boston 9, Mass. P. O. Box 2007, and each envelope or package must bear the name and address of the sender, legibly written or printed, and be fully prepaid.

Titles must be delivered in envelopes bearing sufficient postage with coupon, written or printed matter, if mailed. It is therefore necessary that the envelope be fully prepaid at postal rates, as mail of this character is the only postage that will be permitted. The Boston American reserves the right to reject any envelope that does not bear sufficient postage for postal delivery and fully prepaid.

There will be no title or answer book or list of Song Titles will be printed in the Boston American. Only the Test Pictures will contain answers.

Participants who desire further information should address their inquiries to the Song Title Editor, No. 90 Summer street, Boston 9, Mass., and not to the office of the Boston American. The Boston American reserves the right to disregard the communications of participants who desire personal replies. They should enclose sufficient postage for such a reply or they may phone Main 6100 or call in person.

Should two American citizens submit the same list of titles and be entitled to the same award, the Boston American reserves the right to award a duplicate prize to each of them.

If any question which may arise with regard to the Song Title Test is not fully covered in these rules, the decision of the Song Title Editor on any question which may arise will be accepted as final. By entering the Test the contestant is considered as having a complete acceptance of all conditions and regulations now made or to be made.

Prizes will be awarded as soon as possible after the Test closes. Duplicate awards will be made in case of ties.

Titles will not be considered. KEEP your titles from day to day and at the end of the Test arrange them in numerical order and then send them in all together at one time.

Time will not be a factor in making the awards. The first titles sent in after the Test closes will stand no better than the last submitted.

The Oceanic National Bank of Boston
MELVIN M. JOHNSON, President

A group of mahogany desks, with unsmiling, unresponsive and frequently unhuman officials seated at them, flanked by a series of steel cages with disinterested automatons hedged behind them, does not of itself constitute a proper service to the public, in the opinion of the directors and officers of this institution.

The warm spirit of cordiality, friendliness and understanding that greets you upon entering the doors of the Oceanic National is but a promise of the genuine helpfulness and co-operation of which even the smallest depositor is assured throughout every department of the bank.

MEXICAN ISLES CLAIM DECRIED

U. S. Officials Say Title to Pacific Coast Groups Has Been Settled Many Times

Washington, June 27.—The government refuses to take seriously the report that Mexico has laid claim to several groups of islands off the California coast.

The question of ownership has been settled many times and always to its own satisfaction, it was stated in high official circles today.

According to dispatches from Mexico City a commission headed by Secretary of Agriculture Aguirre has decided that Santa Catalina, San Angel, Santa Rosa, Santa Vera Cruz, Anacapa, Santa Barbara, San Nicholas, San Clementa and the Farallones rightly belong to Mexico.

At the Mexican embassy here it was stated that if the commission has so decided, the Obregon government probably will request a cash settlement. Mexico will not demand their surrender, it was conceded.

"The search of titles has disclosed several times that Mexico's claims ceased legally many years ago," it was explained in government circles.

The last time the issue came up was when the War Department was about to place a radio station on one of the Farallones, just outside the Golden Gate at San Francisco. The issue was not with Mexico, but with private property holders. The negotiations, however, resulted in the government again proving its ownership, officials established.

The government anticipates no difficulty in proving that Mexico is in error, in the event that she lays formal claim to the islands.

BEACH CLOSING STIRS CAPE ANN

Gloucester Mayor Scores New York Man for Excluding Public at Wingaersheek

Gloucester, June 27.—Local feeling is running high over the exclusion of the public from Wingaersheek Beach, the largest beach on Cape Ann. This property is claimed by J. D. Hawks of Buffalo, New York, who has written a letter to Mayor Percy W. Wheeler complaining that several people had broken the chains at the entrance to the beach and assaulted the caretaker.

In reply, Mayor Wheeler caustically pointed out that Hawks had closed illegally an old road to the beach, that his property was under-assessed, and that he had invaded the property of others.

Mayor Wheeler also declared that Hawks was holding up the progress of Gloucester as a Summer resort by a selfish desire to keep other people from enjoying the beauties of Cape Ann.

The Mayor promised to take up the matter of the under-assessment and refused to give police protection to Hawks' "policy of squatting on private property."

POLICE ACT IN AUTO CRUSADE

I hear that Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice, whose comings and going are always of interest to society folk, will probably arrive in Newport on July 10 for the Summer.

BLAMES SICKNESS ON UNCLEAN STORES

Mushroom eating places, candy stores and soda fountains which living will have to "either clean up or shut up."

This is the ultimatum of health department officials, who blame much of the prevalent sickness to the unclean conditions in certain places where food and vegetables are offered "for sale."

Theorder of the board reads that after July 1 hot and cold water will have to be installed and towels provided to clean employees' hands and utensils used in preparation and distribution.

BOYS FINED FOR TOP GAMBLING

Six boys, ranging from fifteen to nineteen years old, were spinning a "teddie" top in a doorway across the street from the South Boston police station when observed by Patrolman Varner from the guard room. Four of the youngsters paid a $3 fine today and the other two had their cases continued to Wednesday.

SMUTS MAY AID IRISH PEACE

South African Statesman Mentioned as Mediator in Dispute

don for a peace parley within forty-eight hours. Confidence is expressed in official circles that there will be most important developments before the end of this week.

It was explained at the Irish office that no question of an "armistice" is involved. Military conditions will remain in statu quo during the conference, if it is held. The government, it was declared, would be very glad to have the services of Premier Smuts for mediation, providing the Irish desire it.

However, the information reaching British officialdom is that the Irish prefer to have the question worked out directly between themselves and the English without any third party.

A new version of the arrest and release of De Valera last week was circulated in government circles today. It was said that the Sinn Fein leader's arrest was a deliberate act to prove that the British authorities always have his whereabouts and to show that no harm was intended. De Valera now works in the open without fear of molestation.

A Dublin dispatch says Dail Eireann (Sinn Fein parliament) was today summoned to meet tomorrow to consider formally De Valera's reply to Lloyd George's peace offer. It is believed in Dublin, the dispatch said, that Dail Eireann and De Valera will accept the Premier's invitation.

Ulster Criticism of Lloyd George's Move

By International News Service.

Belfast, June 27.—Opposition to Ulster's participation in Premier Lloyd George's proposed "Irish peace conference" developed here today.

William Coote, an Orange leader and member of the Northern Ireland (Ulster) Parliament, charged that a plot was on foot "to subjugate Ulster to the Dublin Parliament."

"We shall decline to deal with murderers," said Coote.

Sir James Craig, the Premier, has summoned a meeting of the Ulster Cabinet tomorrow to discuss formally the invitation of Premier Lloyd George.

Former Flora Davis, Again in Society, Envy of London

By GERTRUDE LADY DECIES.

London, June 27.—Since the death of her husband, Florence, Marchioness of Dufferin, has been leading a retiring life, but just now she is entering society again.

She was Flora, daughter of John H. Davis of New York. She has lived here most of the time since her marriage. Her entrance into London society created a sensation, and she is hailed as the heroine of the season. Her luxurious entertainments are the envy of the hostesses. The American polo players were great favorites of hers and have been guests at her house many times.

Great Britain's racing world expects to be invaded next year by King Manuel, who has been busy for some time visiting all the best known racing studs of the country. He has visited Newmarket, Wantage, Manton, Clarehaven and Epsom, studying stabling and the intricacies of training animals for racing purposes.

He has also been present at the biggest horse sales accompanied by Lord Londale and Sir Walter Gilbey, both of whom are keen judges of horseflesh. It is only since the war that the former King has evinced a taste for racing. He is happiest now when attending the great turf classic, while before the war his sporting tastes were inclined toward boxing, billiards and tennis.

His has already made several purchases of two-year-olds, and his friends are confident that he will break out next year with a complete racing stable ready to enter all engagements.

The Prince of Wales has entered a swimming contest of 150 yards at the Bath Club on June 29. He is declared to have a good chance of winning.

Mayfair is agreeably surprised at the announcement of the return to society of the Countess Essex, who has been missing from the West End drawing rooms for the last several seasons. During the war she was busy managing Washington Inn, the Y. M. C. A. hotel for American officers in London. She was then never seen in society, but now is in town.

Until a week ago little had been heard of Lady Hamilton-Russell, who was Estelle, daughter of the late W. L. Campbell of New York. Now her mansion on Pont street, one of the most fashionable residential districts of London, is the scene of swagger entertainments, which are earning her a reputation among Americans and Britishers alike. The "best people" in American society can be met at her home.

WOMAN, 77, WINS RIGHT TO BALLOT

The right to vote was given to one more woman today when Miss Bridget Cahill, of No. 15 Cushing street, Waltham, was handed her final naturalization papers by Judge James M. Morton, Jr., in the Federal Court.

Miss Cahill, who is seventy-seven years old, is the sister of former United States Marshal Patrick J. Duane, and for forty-seven years has been housekeeper in the homes of clergymen, first for the late Rev. Father Thomas Coughlin, of Sacred Heart Church, Mt. Auburn, and then for the late Rev. Father Robert Stack, of St. Patrick's Church, Watertown.

RAN STILL FOR SICK HUSBAND

Two defendants were before Judge Barnes in East Boston court today on charges of keeping and exposing liquor for sale. Annie Dedeas admitted to the police she ran a still because her husband was sick. She paid a fine of $50. Edward Steph of No. 128 Bennington street had his case continued to Saturday. Raids at both places netted moonshine, mash and stills, the police said.

Comments by Boston Men on Lloyd George's Offer

Following are comments by Boston men on Premier Lloyd George's letter to Eamon De Valera and Sir James Craig inviting them to a conference in London:

JOHN J. MARTIN, president of the Exchange Trust Company—At the present state of affairs in Ireland anything in the line of a compromise should be seriously considered. The suggested conference naturally leads to the belief that Lloyd George now sees that the next move for permanent peace is his. Neither side should go into the affair without a realization that a policy of "give and take" must rule.

JOSEPH P. O'CONNELL, former Congressman—I cannot help but recall the past performances of Lloyd George, the shiftiest and most unreliable statesman that has ever been produced. Yet, I do not want to take any credit from him for an honest efforts to settle the Irish question. There is no doubt that he has finally sensed the feelings of the Irish and the English people and has therefore called a conference which may go a long way toward establishing peace.

JAMES M. CURLEY, former Mayor—Recalling past experiences with Lloyd George one is naturally suspicious of any so-called peace move. If he is sincere this time, this suggested conference may go a long way toward the peace of the world. Possibly the move is only another scare for Lloyd George to launch more "remedial legislation" like the dual government. If so, it may produce more trouble for both England and Ireland.

FRANCIS J. HORGAN, chairman of the publicity committee, State branch, A. A. R. I. R.—I believe the action of Lloyd George has been brought about because the English forces have been meeting with disaster. I also feel that it follows the pressure of the world's opinion as to the tactics used by the British army in Ireland. It is well to bear in mind that if the proposed offer is conditional on the partition of Ireland it must fail. Irishmen are determined that their internal affairs must be settled by themselves and they will not tolerate the establishment of two distinct and independent governments.

JOSEPH H. O'NEIL, president of the Federal Trust Company—I don't think Lloyd George's suggestion is one of sincerity. I don't think he has a sincere bone in his body. I am with the people of Ireland for anything they want. When they are satisfied I shall be.

JOHN F. HARRIGAN, State President A. A. R. I. R.—I was not surprised to learn that Lloyd George had been forced by the victorious march of the Irish Republican army and the force of public opinion all over the world to take action. I cannot, however, lose sight of his previous protestations and ruthless methods. At any rate, if such a conference is held I believe that no agreement will be entertained by the Irish people without a referendum.

FRANCIS A. CAMPBELL, Clerk of the Suffolk Superior Court—I do not believe Lloyd George was ever sincere in his offers or promises to Ireland and I cannot think he is sincere in this latest suggestion for a conference. He no doubt is endeavoring to impress the rest of the world. The conference cannot be productive as a solution of the Irish question unless complete independence is agreed upon.

How Should a Jury Judge This Woman?
Love Saved Her Body and Her Soul Then a Jury Tried Her
The screen version of Donn Byrne's famous Hearst's Magazine story, "The Woman God Changed," actually depicts the fascinating night life of the South Sea Isles—great shipwreck scenes—the thrilling adventures of a beautiful girl and her lover alone on a desert island—and brings the drama to a mighty close in an amazing courtroom climax of tremendous interest and power.
"The Woman God Changed"
This—the hit picture of the year—has had a tremendous success wherever shown.
In New York it has had five weeks' run on Broadway, filling three great metropolitan theatres every afternoon and evening. It opened at the famous Rivoli Theatre, moved to the Rialto, Broadway and 42nd street, and then went to the Broadway Theatre. Its success in the Broadway led to its being held over for a second week and then a third week, breaking a rule of the management that has always previously compelled an entire change of bill weekly.
The renowned Keith-Proctor-Moss New York chain of high-priced reserved seat vaudeville and picture houses made last week Cosmopolitan Production Week and featured "The Woman God Changed."

JACK DEMPSEY HITS 'ER UP ON HOME STRETCH OF TRAINING

WRESTLES WITH BULL MONTANA

Mat Work Comes After Boxing Seven Stiff Rounds With Four Partners

By Jack Dempsey

Heavyweight Champion of the World.
Copyright, 1921, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 27.—Have hit the old home stretch in the training program at last.

With the big battle only a few days away, I put everything I had into seven stiff rounds with the big fellows. My orders to them were to let loose with everything they had and not to spare me in the slightest. I wanted to test out my jaw and stomach.

It was a great workout with four different men, all of it topped off with a two-minute rough and tumble affair with Bull Montana, the great maltese idol of the movies, who is prouder of the fact that he looks like a monkey than one of our leading actors is over the fact that he's handsome.

* * *

Put a whole lot of energy into the seven rounds of batting with the boys and was anxious to call it a day as I completed some setting-up exercises. I was just putting my sweater on preparatory to jumping out of the ring when Bull bellowed through the ropes and, seeing me making preparations for an exit, howled: "Ah, he-e-e's afraid of me."

* * *

That settled it. I just grabbed Bull by the ears and pulled him half way around the ring and he roughed it back. We were to do some shoving, but every time I'd shove a little harg Bull would get into a clinch and punch. I wore the old boy down by twisting and turning him around until he was dizzy and then I scored the only knockout of the day by dumping him on the floor and beating it to my rubbing room before Bull could get a chance to throw the arena furniture at me.

* * *

Eddie O'Hara gave me a speedy two-round workout. I wanted him to tear into me today more than he has in the past so I could get practice meeting a fast attack. So Eddie kept in close and the two rounds was made up largely of infighting.

* * *

Herman Miller, a wrestler-fighter from Baltimore, dropped into camp and wanted to box only a round with me. I consented. Herman started right off by trying to knock me from Atlantic City to Nova Scotia. He picked up his right hander from the floor and swung with about 200 pounds of bulk behind it.

I half-hooked, half-jabbed a left to Herman's jaw. Then he gave me the office to "punch a little easier, please." I did and we went along the rest of the way with Herman doing most of the swinging. I'll bet that bird will have a stree fight on tomorrow.

Larry Williams came on for two rounds, followed by Jack Renault for two more. Both boys gave me some snappy practice. Larry's job was to keep me fighting at close range; Jack moved away and let me practice long shots.

At the end of the day I reckoned that my condition at this time is everything that I have hoped for and big hope is that I'll be in better shape for Carpentier than I was for Willard.

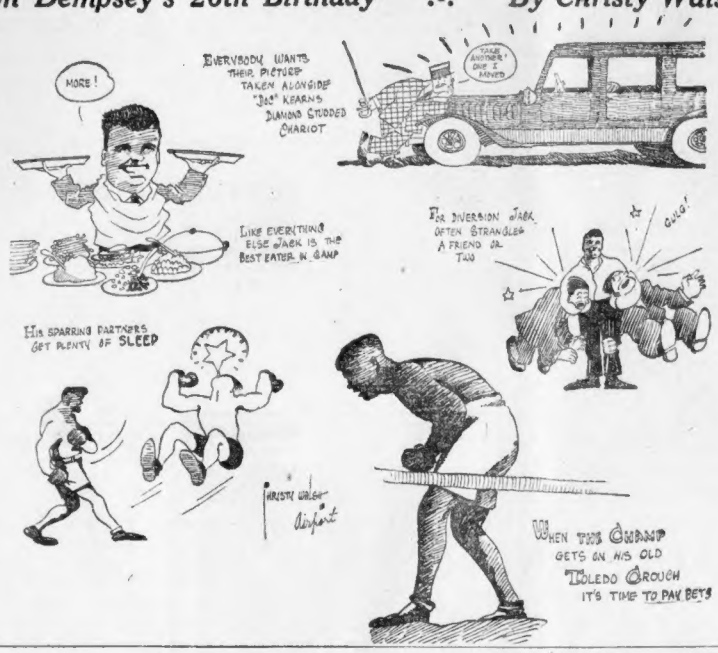
On Dempsey's 26th Birthday :-: By Christy Walsh



Majority of Experts Pick Jack Dempsey

Jack Dempsey is the choice of the majority of the experts who keep in close touch with boxing to defeat Georges Carpentier at Jersey City, Saturday. A few favor the Frenchman and give their reasons for believing the title will change hands. The opinions of some of the more prominent follow:

George Washington Grant, owner of the Boston Braves—It ought to be a short bout, with Dempsey all the way. Carpentier hasn't done much to prove himself in a class with the champion. All his opponents were easy marks.

Babe Ruth, home run king—The old wallop will turn the trick. Dempsey will win because the big wallop wins in every sport. They tell me that the Frenchman is fast and will run away, but Jack is somewhat fast himself.

Mike Gibbons, St. Paul middleweight—Carpentier has a good chance to win. Dempsey is not a hard man to hit, and therefore a good boxer with a punch should do very well.

Johnny Buff, Syweight champion of America—Dempsey should win, for while Carpentier is a good man I don't believe he is as good as the champion. The contest should be decided in less than rounds.

Jack Johnson, colored heavyweight and former champion of the world—Dempsey is much stronger and a faster puncher and therefore I firmly believe he will win. Jack will win between the eighth and tenth rounds.

Jess Willard, who lost his title to Jack Dempsey—Not having seen Carpentier in action and without actual knowledge of his ability I could not predict a winner. In fact I don't know who'll win. I'm busy drilling for oil and haven't paid much attention to the fight.

Joe Lynch, bantamweight champion of the world—I pick Dempsey to win by a knockout in six or seven rounds. Carpentier will not be able to get away from Jack's body punches and will be cracked in two by those that land.

Joe Beckett, England's heavyweight champion—If Dempsey is as fast as reported he will win. I have never seen Dempsey, but I know what Carpentier can do.

Tom Gibbons, heavyweight—I think Jack will win. George's claim to a fight with Dempsey lay in his victory over Joe Beckett, but Frank Moran also turned the trick with ease.

Joe Choynski, formerly well-known heavyweight—I can see no apparent advantage for either man, as both are punchers. It's a toss-up, but I think the Frenchman has an excellent chance, especially if the fight drags. He is about twice as fast as Dempsey.

Joe Jeanette, Carpentier's colored sparring partner—Carpentier's terrible right hand should win for him, because it can put any man down. I think Georges will get one of these rights over because he is fast enough. Carpentier looks open but is hard to hit.

Frank Klaus, who won from Carpentier on a foul in 1912, in 19 rounds—While the Frenchman has improved his defence since I met him, he is not rugged enough to absorb the body punches Jack is capable of sending. Dempsey should win by a knock-out in four or five rounds.

Willie Ritchie, former lightweight champion—I figure Carpentier has a chance. If Jack had trouble with a slow man like Brennan he will probably have trouble connecting with the fast and experienced Georges. If he misses a few times he will strive to be more careful and as a result will sacrifice aggressiveness and confidence.

Freddy Welch, former lightweight champion—I think Dempsey will win, but only after the hardest bout of his career. The Frenchman may have skill enough, but he does not possess the strength to appear on even terms with the champion.

Johnny Coulon, former bantamweight champion—Both men have been underrated. Carpentier by the Americans and Dempsey by the Frenchmen. I think it's a toss-up.

Marvin Hart, who acted as sparring partner of Dempsey—Dempsey will win, of course. I know his ability, for I toured the country with him after he won the title. Carpentier may be the fastest boxer in the world, but he will need to be, for just as soon as Jack gets to him with one of his healthy wallops it will be all over.

Eugene Corri, well-known English referee—I shan't be surprised whoever wins. I have seen Carpentier in action and I know what he can do, but I have also received letters from my friends who tell me that Dempsey is not only possessed of a strong punch but is fast, brainy and a clean liver.

Lieutenant Nelnte Miller, former navy bantam and featherweight champion—I give the Frenchman an even break. Dempsey will win if he can win in the early rounds, but if the fight goes over six rounds Carpentier will win.

Tom O'Rourke, manager—If Dempsey doesn't end it in the first round it will be a great battle. I know the Frenchman and he is fast, dead game and can hit. Jack will have to watch his guard, because if he gives Georges an opening he will feel it.

Billy Rocke, promoter and manager—It will be a great punching fight and ought to be over in six or seven rounds. Carpentier is large enough and fast enough to win. And Dempsey is not the man he was at Toledo.

Dominick Torterich, promoter—I think Dempsey will win, though the fight may go ten rounds. Carpentier has been underrated, but still I think Dempsey is the better man.

Jack Curley, wrestling promoter—Carpentier will be the next champion. Georges has as much punch as Dempsey and he will overcome the champion's advantage of weight and strength by his speed and skill. The longer the fight goes the better for Carpentier.

Jack Gleason, former promoter—Dempsey ought to win in about four rounds. The Frenchman is not strong enough to keep Jack away from him.

Philadelphia Jack O'Brien—In Carpentier Dempsey will face the best man he has ever met. The challenger fades away like a shadow before the blow, and will be hard to hurt. On the other hand he carries a knockout punch in either hand. Dempsey is a great champion, but he will have to be at his best to keep his crown.

James J. Corbett, former heavyweight champion—A good big man always has it on a good little man. Dempsey is as strong as a bull and as quick as a cat. There can be but one result. Dempsey will win with a knockout.

Bartling Levinsky, light heavyweight—I have been knocked out by both men and should be able to judge of their respective abilities. Carpentier is the hardest hitter, and he is harder to hit. If he fights a waiting game he will have better than an even chance.

Wilbert Robinson, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers—I do not think Carpentier has exposed his hand and herein he will hold a decided advantage. At any rate, I am putting for him. My heart is always with the under dog.

William H. (Big Bill) Edwards, Collector of Internal Revenue—Dempsey will have to be a far better man than the Dempsey that fought Bill Brennan in Madison Square Garden. Carpentier will surprise everybody, in my opinion. He is under cover, sure. I think Dempsey is in for the surprise of his life.

Babe Adams, pitcher of Pittsburg Pirates—Dempsey to win in a hurry if they go in to punch, otherwise Dempsey in about five rounds. The Frenchman cannot withstand the champion's punches.

Steve O'Neill, catcher, Cleveland Indians—The fight will end just as soon as Dempsey can catch Carpentier, which should be less than six rounds. The Frenchman has never whipped anybody worth while, anyhow.

Bill Killefer, catcher, Chicago Cubs—Dempsey is too strong and too hard a puncher for the Frenchman. Carpentier hasn't got a chance.

Rickard Hopes Best Man May Win

By TEX RICKARD,
Promoter of Title Bout.

The match between Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier is the first international contest for the heavyweight title that ever has been arranged by me, and I am naturally much interested in the success of the undertaking.

From all points of view it is the most important, as well as the most interesting, pugilistic battle that has yet been staged in America, and judging from the ticket sale, more persons will witness it than ever before in the history of pugilistic events.

Personally I will say nothing as to the outcome of the contest except to express the hope that the best man wins.

American prize fight managers and sporting enthusiasts who have had an opportunity of watching the French champion during his workouts at Manhasset may have a surprise in store for them on July 2 at the Jersey City arena. I have come across the water from a long distance, at a tremendous expense to my purse, to report this fight for the French people, and I am sure I am right in saying that Georges Carpentier will show the Americans far more than he has ever demonstrated in public, if the performance of last Thursday afternoon is a fair sample.

"I have known Carpentier since long before he became a big figure in the boxing game. I watched him win his first fight against Charlie Ledoux as a featherweight, and have kept pace with him while he has grown heavier and far more important as a fighter. In all that time Carpentier has lost none of the speed that marked his earlier fights. If anything, he has improved his speed.

* * *

Dempsey I do not know and have never seen, but your champion of the world must needs be fast if he is to offer any resistance to Carpentier. They tell me that Dempsey is fast and that he is a good man. I know this only by far the most serious test which Georges has faced, and yet we are confident in France that he will, as the Americans say, "bring home the bacon."

* * *

I am not altogether ignorant of American boxing and boxers. For a number of years I made my home in San Francisco, where I competed under the colors of the Olympic Club in the half-mile and other middle distances. In those days, you may recall, the pick of boxers were matched in San Francisco, and for a long period of time most of the championship heavyweight matches took place there.

* * *

Jeffries I have seen a number of times. I was a spectator when Jack Johnson hoxed, and I saw Philadelphia Jack O'Brien when he whipped Al Kaufman and stopped a promising career, and also O'Brien's fights gainst Sammy Burns.

* * *

As a matter of comparison I sincerely believe that Carpentier would have beaten Jack O'Brien at the latter's best. Jeffries, I am inclined to think, would have won from Carpentier in twelve rounds. Jeffries was to big and burly and would have caught Carpentier sooner or later. Johnson might doubtless have won from Georges, but of that I am not so sure. In either case, Carpentier would have been giving away a world of weight—too much.

* * *

Betting on the fight is practically at 2 to 1, as it is in this country. We watch the odds carefully and naturally will not take any of the worst of it. Much of the betting is being done by French people who are actuated by patriotic reasons, who are backing Carpentier not because they know anything about Dempsey, but because Carpentier is one of their own. And they are supporting him as liberally as their means will permit.

DESCAMPS ASKS ANOTHER BOUT FOR GEORGES

By Sam Hall

New York, June 27.—Georges Carpentier did no boxing Sunday behind his barn. At least Trainer Gus Wilson claims nobody caught him at it, and that nobody will the rest of the week. He says nobody got under the barn either, but that the space beneath the barn will be closely guarded henceforth.

"I can't understand how these stories about his boxing get out. We have cursed down everybody at the gate, and are insisting on secrecy, as announced to the public several days ago. Georges was on the road in the morning and did some calisthenics in his gymnasium. Then he went fooling with Captain Mallent and a party of friends.

"Just what he will do the rest of this week I cannot say, except that he will not read all week. I have strict orders from Manager Descamps and Carpentier, himself, to tell nothing about his boxing or whether he boxed at all or not. That is all I can say."

Gus' words will have to be taken for it, because the gate was barred on us. Very few tried to get in, the scribes taking it for granted the bars were on. Hiding under the barn is too tough a racket for the small amount of news involved. Somebody may get shot. There is nothing startling in the information that Georges trained up Journee and Arnold, the lightweight, in secret on Saturday. Neither one of them could bother Jack Dempsey with a club.

Promoter Tex Rickard has come out with the announcement that Georges is so confident that Manager Descamps had asked for a match with Tom Gibbons or Bill Brennan for Labor Day in the same arena where the Frenchman fights Dempsey. Georges anticipates being the champion of the world on that occasion.

Rickard says Descamps came into town and had a long talk with him. According to Tex, the Frenchman's mentor said:

"Mr. Rickard, I am sure we are going to triumph at Jersey City. Carpentier is in the finest shape of his career. He keeps telling me that Dempsey surely will be flattened by one of his blows. His right hand is working like lightning and he is positive he can land it.

"Now I would like to have you promote a match between Carpentier and either Gibbons or Brennan at Jersey City on Labor Day if Carpentier is the champion then. We can go back to France for a week to see relatives and then come here for the September date. That's all bunk about him aiming to retire with the title if he wins."

This rather nonplussed Rickard, who asked:

* * *

"Are you really so sure of winning?"

COL. ROOSEVELT REFEREE OF SWIM

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, acted as honorary referee of the first swimming meet to be held by the newly formed Oyster Bay swimming Club, at Oyster Bay today. Dr. James Hall of Oyster Bay, who is also president of the swimming club, will be the "working" referee and will be assisted by Miss Charlotte Epstein of the New York Women's Club, all of whose stars are entered in the meet.

BIG LINE FLAVOR IN SHORT SHIP

Fine Entry List for Races on Cherry Park Half-Mile Track Starting Tomorrow

The short Ship races starting at Cherry Park, Avon, Ct., have a Big Line flavor, judging by the entry lists. The classes have filled and the calibre of the horses which compete is about the best ever brought together at a half-mile track in New England.

The management will distribute fully $10,000 in money to the winners during the four days of the sport. Fishing winners will not be so easy, as at least 30 per cent. of the prospective starters are steeds that have not taken the word yet, but are ready, willing and waiting.

Third No-Decision Bout for Title

The Dempsey-Carpentier bout next Saturday will be the third no-decision battle for the world's heavyweight title. The first of these was the contest between Jess Willard and Frank Moran in Madison Square Garden, New York City, on March 25, 1916. It went the limit, Willard gaining the decision. The second was between Dempsey and Willard and was won by the former after three rounds of fighting at Toledo, O., on July 4, 1919.

Here's why
CAMELS are the quality cigarette

BECAUSE we put the utmost quality into this one brand. Camels are as good as it's possible for skill, money and lifelong knowledge of fine tobaccos to make a cigarette.

Nothing is too good for Camels. And bear this in mind! Everything is done to make Camels the best cigarette it's possible to buy. Nothing is done simply for show.

Take the Camel package for instance. It's the most perfect packing science can devise to protect cigarettes and keep them fresh. Heavy paper—secure foil wrapping—revenue stamp to seal the fold and make the package air-tight. But there's nothing flashy about it. You'll find no extra wrappers. No frills or furbelows.

Such things do not improve the smoke any more than premiums or coupons. And remember—you must pay their extra cost or get lowered quality.

If you want the smoothest, mellowest, mildest cigarette you can imagine—and one entirely free from cigaretty aftertaste,

It's Camels for you.

VICTOR MAY GET LYNCH BOUT

Plenty of Action Expected at Commercial A. C.'s Big Show

By Jack Conway

Abe Friedman, New England bantamweight champion, will defend his title against Young Montreal of Providence in a ten-round bout at the Commercial A. C.'s show at Mechanics Building tonight. It is one of the most important matches between little men ever staged in a Boston ring.

It will be the second meeting between these men. Their first mêlée was staged in this city last Winter. At that time Montreal was the New England bantamweight champion. The Providence warrior entered the ring as a 10 to 6 favorite. Friedman, however, gave the dope a severe jolt and was well out ahead when the final blow had been delivered.

Since his tussle with Montreal, Friedman has been boxing in his usual brilliant form. His cleverness, ringability as a boxer and fine ring generalship have enabled him to smash his way to many decisive victories.

Just now the New England champion is out to land a match with Joe Lynch. He believes that the best way to accomplish this result is by handing Montreal an upset at the Armory Club's show.

Montreal is just as eager to get a mêlée with the champion. The Providence man has already battled Lynch once. The bout was staged in Cleveland a couple of months ago. Monty was out front when all had been said and done. And would be the world's champion today if decisions were permitted in Johnny Kilbane's town. As Montreal also scored a couple of knockdowns over Herman conqueror of Jimmy Wilde, he has plenty of reasons for believing he is the class of the little fellows.

* * *

Monty and Abe will be supported by a couple of eights and a six-round battle. Reservations may be secured during the day at No. 28 School street, Room 15.

* * *

Young Kloby and Eddie Shevlin are busy preparing for their bout which will be staged at Salem on July 4. This is one of the most important matches of the Summer season. The Navaltus Club has opened Kirby-Sherlin headquarters at No. 38a Washington street. Joe Sullivan plans to handle between 20,000 and 30,000 persons at his ghostly arena.

GEORGES FAVORITE OF CHILI SPORTS

Santiago, Chili, June 27.—Intense interest has been aroused here over the Dempsey-Carpentier fight. Several newspapers are conducting contests soliciting the opinions of their readers as to the winner.

El Mercurio has received thousands of answers which show a slight majority in favor of the Frenchman.

SS. PETER AND PAUL TEAM WINS, 14 TO 5

The SS. Peter and Paul baseball team of South Boston chalked up its seventeenth victory of the season, on the Lexington Athletic Field, defeating St. Bridget's ball nine, 14 to 5.

CRUISE IS HERO FOR BRAVES

Home Run Drive Keeps Tribe on the Victory Trail

Brooklyn, June 27.—Walton Cruise's home run over the right field wall in the ninth inning with two out and two on paced the Boston Braves to the third game with the Brooklyn Dodgers, 7 to 4. Cadore had the Braves beaten, 6 to 2, up to the ninth when he exploded for five hits and five runs. About 10,000 fans saw the explosion.

* * *

Ford opened the ninth for Boston by pouling to Wheat. Gaudy singled and Gibson ran for him. Christenbury batted for Mequillan and his double sent Gibson to third. Powell beat out an infield hit, scoring Gibson and sending Christenbury to third. Barabe's sacrifice fly to Myers scored Christenbury with the tying run. Southworth singled to right. Cruise lifted a home run over the right field wall near the foul line, scoring Powell and Southworth ahead of him. Rooekel tried to Wheat, ending the round with five runs counted.

Boston broke the ice in the fifth inning. Powell singled and took second on Barbare's single. Southworth's triple to right scored Powell but Barbara was nipped at the plate by Griffith's throw to Miller. Cruise singled Southworth home and died stealing. Nothing happened for the Braves until the eventful ninth.

* * *

Olson singled for Brooklyn in the sixth and scored on singles by Johnston and Wheat. Myers opened the seventh with a home run into the left field bleachers that tied the score. Janvrin followed Myers with a pass and sent home on Miller's sacrifice and Cadore's single.

* * *

Johnston walked in the eighth. Griffith sacrificed and Johnston stole third. Schmandt's single scored Johnston with the last Brooklyn run.

GOLFERS CLASH AT NASHUA

Massachusetts Players Among Those Who Seek Honors in Tourney

Among the players likely to give Eddie Lowery the most trouble in his effort to retain the junior championship are Clark Hodder, William Quinlan, William Mehler and Charles McAndrew.

Franklyn Collier, Jr., is entered for the junior. The senior Collier is a member of Bellevue, and has been showing his son how to play the game on that course. He should do well.

Reports indicate that it will be one of the fastest fields ever in the State championship at Worcester, next week. Round today that Ray Porter of Homestead was hitting his drives so far he will enter, as will Roger Hover and Ray Gorton, the finalists for the Brae-Burn Club title. Bert Hosie, who just made a new record of 68 at Wollaston, is to start.

* * *

A long anticipated foursome is scheduled for tomorrow at Albemarle, when Woodland meets Albemarle in the final match of the interclub series. Francis Ouimet and Jesse Guilford are down to play Fred Wright, Jr., and Parker Schofield. This will be a golfing treat, with plenty of incentive for the laborers, as the championship of the league may hinge on the result.

* * *

His big fault was in trying to strike out every batter that faced him. In so doing he soon lost control of his famous out drop and roundhouse curve, which spelled defeat.

Too much cannot be said of the fine twirling of Frank McCrehan, who was never in danger. Working in perfect conjunction with Gautreau, his catcher, and the other members of the squad, will bring a winning team home at all times. This is just what big Frank did do.

Some of the professionals who didn't think Walter Hagen would finish in the money at St. Andrews were paying up at Nashua today.

SAUCE AND SASS

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

THAT NICE LITTLE COURSE.

The experts drive from tee to green and hole out for a two,
And then they say, "This course is keen—a pip, I'm telling you,"
But they don't know what's in between each tee and hole—I do.

On Number One, a clump of trees encroaches on the right,
And one of them's a home for bees—the kind that love to bite—
I'll score that spot no expert sees; but well I know it—quite.

And then, on Two, there is a bog where lands each pill I mace;
It serves me like an epilogue—my play ends in that place—
I'll bet no expert knows a frog among its populace.

And Three, and Four, and Five, and Six, and Seven, Eight and Nine,
Each has its roughs and traps and tricks—I've got them all down fine
Through faults of stance, or faults of sticks, or other faults of mine.

Some day I may improve my play and their remarks endorse,
But now each time I hear them say, "It's a great old little course,"
I simply turn my head away and laugh just like a horse.

Guy Nickalls said the Yale crew was "gutless," but in its exhibition against Harvard the Elis turned that charge back upon Guy, for it was clearly demonstrated that Guy got less out of them than they were ready and willing to give.

Just because Captain-elect Lang-horne Gibson of the Yale crew is the son of Charles Dana Gibson, the artist, many Yale grads seem to think he will "draw" a lot of good oarsmanship at Yale.

J. Harry Ertle, the fight referee, is city marshal of Jersey City. That should give him sufficient "force" to handle the job.

According to reports from Westfield, not only fowls, but fouls, annoy the backyard gardeners. They treat 'em different, however, for they drive away the fowls and grab the fouls. Because of this latter custom the Westfield twilight league is likely to go out of business for want of a sufficient supply of baseballs.

Carpentier must be training for the diplomatic corps. A guy that can wire "Many happy returns of the day," to a feller he's planning to knock senseless, should qualify for such occupation without further examination.

He'd throw a fit,
And say, "Ain't Jack the quaint young smarty."

SCHOOLBOY ATHLETICS

By Fred C. Lane.

The exhibition of baseball, given by three Catholic at Portland yesterday, had the local fans wondering what was fostered upon them. The fielding practice was similar to college league outfit.

* * *

The strange infield was no serious handicap to the Cambridge clan. Their win over the Portland nine clearly demonstrated that they are the New England champions.

* * *

The Portland team has lost but two games in eighteen played, claiming the championship of Maine. Coach Georgeon reports little enthusiasm shown for high school baseball, it being his hardest task to gather the lads together for practice.

After giving five years of valuable service turning out three championship baseball teams and the same number of gridiron elevens, the coach has been rewarded with an offer to coach the Bates College eleven next Fall.

Ray Carr, his six-footed, superb hurler, was in rare form, but lacked the pitching experience and support given to Frank McCrehan. For three innings the Canabs found him invincible, but heavy guns were brought up, and the bombardment caused his retirement to the showers.

His big fault was in trying to strike out every batter that faced him. In so doing he soon lost control of his famous out drop and roundhouse curve, which spelled defeat.

Matters are still in a turmoil as to who is the winner of the North Shore League pennant. The topic of discussion has got everybody up in arms, even the prominent people of the town are taking sides in the question.

The officials of the league will hold their next meeting in September, at which the cup will be awarded to the winning team. Perhaps when two teams extending their hand to receive the trophy they will then awaken to the present difficulty.

AMERICA MEETS FRANCE ON TRACK

There is an international flavor to the forty-mile motor-paced team race at the Revere cycle track Wednesday night. George Wiley and Willie Coburn, representing America, will battle Gaetano Sores, champion motor-paced rider of the world, who is paired with Lucien Miquel. Both these flyers are from France.

With so many local stars available Manager Butler will make his professional sprint card from his own field of riders. Frank Kramer's sensational straight win over Pianl, Saturday, finds the fans more in favor of the sprint game.

MISS BLEIBTREY RETURNS HOME

New York, June 27.—Miss Ethelda Bleibtrey, the world's greatest woman swimmer, returned unexpectedly to her home here, coming direct from California after a triumphal tour of Australia and the Hawaiian Islands. Miss Bleibtrey took her first dip in American waters since her return from abroad in the pool of the Brighton Beach Baths, late yesterday afternoon. She was accompanied by Miss Charlotte Boyle, who recently broke the world's record for swimming 150 yards in the Brighton pool.

MALONE TO BOX REED FOR YD

Former Rated as One of Best Welterweights; Siegal and Doyle to Mix

In their two years' campaigning overseas the Yankee Division never captured a better fighter than Jock Malone whom they have signed to meet Pal Reed in the windup of their all-star card which they will stage in Braves Field next Saturday afternoon. It is distinctly a Y. D. affair and all the profits of the big league show will be spent upon the "buddies" in their three days' reunion which begins with the smash in "the home of big things."

Nate Siegel and Paul Doyle will muss each other up in a ten-round semi-final while Bobby Josephs and Tommy Keegan will travel at top speed for ten rounds. The bill has all the classy men of the fight game in New England and incidentally it will introduce Malone to the fans in this section of the country.

Malone Rated High as Welterweight

Malone is rated very high as a welterweight, so high that with the exception of Champion Jack Britton all the other welters rush to cover at the mention of his name. Eddie Shevlin or Nate Siegel would have nothing to do with Jock, so the Y. D. boxing committee dug up Pal Reed, who has about six pounds on him. Apparently they all look alike to Malone, for he has beaten a lot of good middleweights, including Bryan Downey. Our own Joe Ragan made three punches in one round at Mason and then Jock socked him for a goal by hitting him with his right to the chin.

Those who have seen him in action say that Malone is fast, extremely clever and crafty and packs a kayo. Jack Britton gives it out that Jock is the best fighter that has been developed in recent years. Rather magnanimous of the champion in view of the fact that Malone is rated as the next champion in that division.

Fifteen Thousand Buddies Coming

Fifteen thousand buddies are coming for the three days' reunion which opens next Saturday. They will bring as many more friends with them so it can safely be stated that the affair at Braves Field will bring out the largest crowd that ever attended a boxing show in New England. It will be a popular priced affair, tickets selling at $1, $2 and $3. All of the box seats will be reserved for the wounded "buddies" of the division and those ringside seats that are now in the local military hospitals. A. D. committee will ask prominent Boston business firms to purchase the box seats for the wounded men.

The Y. D. committee has reserved 15,000 tickets for the members of the division, and they have been placed on sale at the Y. D. Club on Huntington avenue. The regular fight fans may purchase their tickets at the Panenil A. C., 29 Court street, and on Wednesday tickets will be placed on sale at Braves Field.

BASEBALL TRIAL IS ON TODAY

Chicago, June 27.—The trial of thirteen former baseball players and gamblers alleged to have been involved in the plot to "throw" the 1919 World Series opened today before Judge Hugo Friend in Superior Court.

The court has flatly refused requests made by attorneys for five of the gamblers for further delay of the trial. Some of the jurors and witnesses were in California and could not reach this city in time. Judge Friend said he would forfeit the bonds of any defendant physically fit to be present, who failed to appear.

It was uncertain up to the very last moment whether Benjamin and Louis Levi and David Zelson of Des Moines, who had been on the Pacific coast, would return in time for the trial, but their attorneys today declared the men would be present.

BOXING TAKES A BOOM

Three Shows for New England Fans. Dempsey and Carpentier.

By JACK CONWAY

Three big boxing shows within an eight-day period is the offering of New England promoters. Apparently those gentlemen who risk their money making life enjoyable for the young men who use the padded gloves are of the opinion that high class attractions are still capable of drawing sufficient persons to the ringside to enable the promoter to make a profit. Abe Friedman defends his title as New England bantamweight champion against Young Montreal at Mechanics Building tonight, Pal Reed battles Tommy Robson at the same place on Thursday evening, while Eddie Shevlin and Young Kloby are booked at Salem on July 4.

Dempsey is fat, his wind is broken and he is worrying about the outcome of the big fight at Jersey City, according to one set of "experts." Other writers, supposedly just as familiar with the condition of fighters, inform us that the champion is ready to put up the battle of his career and will pound Carpentier into a pulp inside of five rounds. It is no secret, however, that the Dempsey of today is not as great an athlete as the one who crushed Willard at Toledo. Night parties and soft living do not benefit the physical condition of anybody. Nobody well informed on things pugilistic, however, seems to believe that Dempsey will have to be in his Toledo form to conquer the Frenchman.

Carpentier weighs 174 pounds, Dempsey 194. Maybe the twenty pounds difference in weight will not count. Yet Sam Langford, a greater fighter than Carpentier ever dreamed of being, was unable to defeat Jack Johnson, no better than Dempsey. Stanley Ketchel, another great little man, also failed in his big try against Johnson. What would Langford or Ketchel have done to a Carpentier?

* * *

Carpentier has been knocked out. He has also quit. He nevertheless says he will "kill Dempsey" if he can hit the champion on the chin. Nobody to date has received much of an opportunity to hit the champion on the chin. The Dempsey way of fighting permits only one man to do the hitting. There is not much power behind a man's punches when he is unconscious. Dempsey plans to put the Frenchman in such a condition inside of five rounds.

* * *

The Frenchman won't stand up and fight with the champion in the early rounds. If he should, he would be knocked out probably quicker than Fred Fulton, who stood up before Dempsey for just five seconds. Carpentier's lone hope is to keep out of the way of Dempsey's smashes until the American tires, then become the aggressor and smash his way to a glorious victory. If Carpentier lasts five rounds, Dempsey will probably think somebody has started the war all over again.

Millions of Americans will root for Carpentier. The Frenchman is a popular idol because he did his bit in the war. Patent leather shoes and a shipyard job did not boost Dempsey's stock. Fighting, not war records, will decide the winner Saturday afternoon. This gives Dempsey an advantage.

Has anybody seen Kelley? Babe Ruth is still hitting home runs, while George Kelly of the Giants has dropped back into his natural gait which is that of an ordinary ball player. This writer predicted some weeks ago when everybody was talking about Kelly's wonderful batting, that Babe Ruth would be so far ahead of his rival in the matter of circuit clouts by August 1 that there would not be any ground for comparison between the two men.

SOX CLASH WITH MACKS AGAIN

Battle Tailenders in Games Today and Tomorrow. Then Leave on Brief Trip

By Nick Flatley

The Sox conclude their long stop at the Fenway with a couple of games with the Mackmen today and tomorrow. Then they go out for the remainder of the week. Their home stand has been mighty profitable until the Athletics appeared on the scene.

* * *

The Indians, Yanks and Tigers of the last division group were met and conquered very nifftily by the Duff tribe, but the McGillhuddys arrived and spilled the beans by snatching three games in a row.

* * *

Trouble was the Sox didn't have the same incentive to hustle against the lowly as was present when the strong teams were around. By winning a pair to conclude their stay, the natives can get out on the long end of things.

* * *

Since coming here the Duffys have climbed up a couple of pegs in the race, and are firmly enough intrenched in the upper division. Despite recent losses, the pitching has improved, and Manager Duffy has at least five fingers who can go in and pitch through a contest.

* * *

The teams hitting has been streaky; at times the Sox have a punch that cannot be denied; then come spells of batting weakness that mean disaster. But whatever happens, there's enough strength there to keep the club up in fourth place, with an even chance of shaking the Senators down out of third.

* * *

Samuel Jones, who has had quite a rest, and recovered from the lumps that nearly knocked one of his feet off, was likely to take the mound today, provided lack of exercise hadn't hurt his arm any.

DOCTORS WARN GRASS EATERS

London, June 27.—Hoyo, page Hughey Jennings, famous grass-eating former leader of the Detroit Tigers, now assistant to Mugsey McGraw of the Giants.

Don't chew grass or your health will suffer, is the warning issued to British athletes by leading London specialists, following the news that a famous footballer has had to undergo two operations for a mysterious gland swelling.

The doctors found that the cause of the footballer's trouble was chewing grass and thus swallowing a parasite which attacks cattle.

Robert W. Chambers' Famous Story THE STREETS OF ASCALON Illustrated by Charles Dana Gibson

The Story of a Beautiful Girl and the Man for Whom She Made a Great Sacrifice.

A Spirited and Swiftly Moving Romance of Hearts and High Society, by the Greatest Living Master of Fiction

WHAT HAS HAPPENED.

Dick Quarren, society idler and spendthrift, but clever and good looking, has fallen desperately in love with Strelsa Leeds. She has had one unfortunate matrimonial experience, and since her advent into New York high society has admirers by the score. Quarren meets her first at a masked ball given by Molly Wycherly, wins an hour out of her life on a wager and refrains from kissing her, as he tells her he is eager to do. He wins her interest, and obtains permission to call at her home. She tells him there can be nothing serious between them, but she asks him to always think well of her. She bids him good-by for two weeks. Much gossip is talked at Mrs. Sprowl's tea and Strelsa hears of Quarren's love affairs. Strelsa goes south on a yachting trip, and she and Quarren write. When she returns, Sir Charles Mallison and Langley Sprowl become her ardent suitors. She takes tea with Mrs. Sprowl.

By Robert W. Chambers,
Whose Novels Have Won Him International Fame.

"YOU don't understand at all. There isn't the slightest sentiment between us. He's only thoroughly nice and agreeable, and he and I are most companionable. I hope nobody will be silly enough to hint anything of that sort to him. It would embarrass him dreadfully."

Mrs. Sprowl's smile was blandly tolerant.

"The man's in love with you. Didn't you know it?"

"But you are mistaken, dear Mrs. Sprowl. If it were true I would know it. I think."

"Nonsense. He told me so."

"Oh," said Strelsa in amazed consternation. She added: "If it is so I'd rather not speak of it, please."

Mrs. Sprowl eyed her with shrewd but keen intelligence. "Little idiot," she thought; but her smile remained bland and calmly patronizing.

For a second or two longer she studied the girl cautiously, trying to make up her mind whether there was really any character in Strelsa's soft beauty—anything firmer than material fastidiousness; anything more real than a natural and dainty reticence. Mrs. Sprowl could ride roughshod over such details. But she was too wise to ride if there was any chance of a check from higher sources.

"If you married him it would be very gratifying to me," she said pleasantly. "Come; let's discuss the matter like sensible women. Shall we?"

Beyond Discussion

Many people would not have disregarded such a wish. Strelsa flushed and lifted her purple-gray eyes to meet the little green ones scanning her slyly.

"I am sorry," she said, "but I couldn't discuss such a thing, you see. Don't you see I can't, dear Mrs. Sprowl?"

"Pooh! Rubbish! Anybody can discuss anything," rejoined the old lady with impersonal and boisterous informality. "I'm fond of you. Everybody knows it. I'm fond of Sir Charles. He's a fine figure of a man. You match him in everything, except wealth. It's an ideal marriage——"

"Please don't—I simply cannot——"

"Ideal," repeated Mrs. Sprowl loudly—"an ideal marriage——"

"But when there is no love——"

"Plenty! Loads of it! He's mad about you—crazy!——"

"I—meant—on my part"——

"Good God!" shouted the old lady, beating the air with pudgy hands. "Isn't it luck enough to have love on one side? What does the present generation want? I tell you it's ideal—perfect. He's a good man as men go and a devilish handsome"——

"I know—but"——

"And he's got money!" shouted the old lady—"plenty of it, I tell you! And he has the entree everywhere on the continent—in England—everywhere! — which Dankmere has not!—if you're considering that little whelp!"

Stunned, shrinking from the dreadful asthmatic noises in Mrs. Sprowl's voice, Strelsa sat dumb, wincing under the blows of sound, not knowing how to escape.

"I'm fond of you!" shrieked the old lady. "I can be of use to you and I want to be. That's why I asked you to tea! I want to make you happy—and Sir Charles, too! What the devil do you suppose there is in it for me except to oblige hi—you both?"

"I—thank you, but——"

"I'll bet a shilling that Molly Wycherly let you go about with any little spindle-shanked pill who came hanging around! And I told her what were my wishes——"

"Please — oh, please, Mrs. Sprowl——"

"Yes, I did! It's a good match! I want you to consider it—I insist that——"

"Mrs. Sprowl!" exclaimed Strelsa, pink with confusion and resentment, "I am obliged to you for the interest you display, but it is a matter——"

"What?"

"I am really—grateful—but——"

"Answer me, child. Has that cursed nephew of mine made any impression on you? Answer me!"

"Not the kind you evidently mean!" said Strelsa, helplessly.

"Is there anybody else?"

The outrageous question silenced the girl for a moment. Angry, she still tried to be gentle; tried to remember the age, and the excellent intentions of this excited old lady; and she answered in a low voice:

"I care for no man in particular, unless it be Sir Charles—and"——

"And who?"

"Mr. Quarren, I think," she said. Mrs. Sprowl's jowl grew purple with fury.

"You—has that boy had the impudence—damn him"——

Strelsa sprang to her feet.

"I really cannot remain"—she said with decision, but the old lady only bawled:

"Sit down! Sit down!"

"I will not!"

"Sit down!" she roared in a passion. "What the devil"——

Strelsa, a little pale, started to pass her—then halted, astounded; for the old lady had burst into a paslon of choking gasps. Whether the terrible sounds she made were due to impotent rage or asthma, Strelsa, confused, shocked, embarrassed, but still angry, had no notion; and while Mrs. Sprowl coughed fatly, she stood still, catching muffled fragments of reproaches directed at people who flouted friendship; who had no consideration for age, and no gratitude, no tenderness, no pity.

"I—I am grateful!" faltered Strelsa, "only I cannot"——

"I wanted to be a mother to you! I've tried to be," wheezed the old lady in a fresh paroxysm and beat the air.

For one swift instant the girl remembered what her real mother had been to her, and her heart hardened.

"I care only for your friendship, Mrs. Sprowl; I do not wish you to do anything for me; can we not be friends on that basis?"

Mrs. Sprowl swabbed her inflamed eyes and peered around the corner of the handkerchief.

"Come here, my dear," she said.

Strelsa went, slowly; and Mrs. Sprowl enveloped her like a dusky squid, panting.

An Old Fool

"I only wanted to be good to you, Strelsa. I'm just an old fool, I suppose."

"Oh, please don't"——

"That's all I am, child; just a sentimental old fool. The poor man's affection of you touched my heart—and you do like him a little, don't you?"

"Very much. . . . Thank you for—for wishing happiness to me. I really don't mean to be ungrateful I have a horror of ingratitude. It's only that—the idea never occured to me; and I am incapable of doing such a thing for material reasons, unless—I also really cared for a man."

"Of course, child. Maybe you will care for him some day. I won't interfere any more. . . . Only don't lose your heart to any of these young jackals fawning around your skirts. Every set is full of 'em. They're nothing but the capering chorus in this comic opera. . . . And—don't be angry—but I am an older and wiser woman than you, and I am fond of you, and it's my duty to tell you that any of the lesser breed—take young Quarren, for example—are of no real account, even in the society which they amuse."

"I would scarcely class Mr. Quarren with the sort you mention——"

"Why not? He's of no importance."

"Because he is kind, considerate, and unusually intelligent and interesting; and he is very capable of succeeding in whatever he undertakes," said Strelsa, slowly.

"Ricky is a nice boy; but what does he undertake?" asked Mrs. Sprowl with good-natured contempt. "He undertakes the duties, obligations and details of a useful man in the greater household, which makes him acceptable to us; and I'm bound to say that he does 'am very well. But outside of that he's a nobody. And I'll tell you just what he'll turn into; shall I? Society's third relief bottlewasher in succession. We had one, who strolled us. He's dead. We have another. He's still living. When he ultimately evaporates into infinity Ricky will be his natural successor. Do you want that kind of a husband?"

Not Worthy

"Did you suppose"—

"Don't get angry, Strelsa. I didn't suppose anything. Ricky, like any other man, dangles his good-looking, good-humored self in your vicinity. You're inclined to notice him. All I mean is that he isn't worth your pains. . . . Now you won't be offended by a plain-spoken old woman who wishes only your happiness, will you, my child?"

"No," said Strelsa, wearily, beginning to feel the fatigue of the scene.

She took her leave a few moments afterward, very unhappy because two of the pleasantest incidents in her life had been badly, if not hopelessly, marred. But Langley Sprowl was not one of them.

That hatchet-faced and immaculate gentleman, divining possibly that Strelsa might be with his aunt, arrived shortly after her departure; learned of it from a servant, and was turning on his heel without even asking for Mrs. Sprowl when the thought occurred to him that possibly she might know Strelsa's destination.

When a servant announced him he found his aunt quite herself, grim, ready for trouble, her small green eyes fairly snapping.

They indulged in no formalities, being alone together, and caring nothing for servants' opinions. Their greeting was perfunctory; their inquiries civil. Then there ensued a short silence.

"Which way did Mrs. Leeds go?" he asked, busily twisting his long mustache.

"None of your business," rejoined his aunt.

Slight Surprise

He looked up in slight surprise, recognized a condition of things which, on second thought, surprised him still more. Because his aunt had never before noticed his affairs—had not even commented on the Ledwith matter to him. He had always felt that she disliked him too thoroughly to care.

"I don't think I understand you," he said, watching her out of shifting eyes which protruded a trifle.

"I don't think I understand me before I've done with you," returned his aunt, grimly. "It's a perfectly plain matter; you've the rest of the female community to chase if you choose. Go and chase 'em for all I care—hunt from here to Reno if you like—but I have other plans for Strelsa Leeds. Do you understand? I've put my private mark on her. There's no room for yours."

Langley's gaze, which had not met his here and never met anybody's for more than a fraction of a second—shifted. He continued his attentions to his mustache, his eyes roved; he looked at but did not see a hundred things in a second.

"You don't know where she's gone?" he inquired with characteristic perfunctority and an indifference to what she had said, absolutely empty.

"Do you mean trouble for that girl?"

"I do not."

"What do you mean?"

"Nothing."

"Do you want to marry her?"

"I said last if I was considering nothing in particular. We are friends."

"Keep away from her! Do you understand?"

"I really don't know whether I do or not. I suppose you mean Sir Charles."

The Wild Goose

This romance has been made into a stirring motion picture by Cosmopolitan Production under the masterly direction of Albert Capellani.

Story Up to Date

Francis Manners, an architect and artist, is doing some special work in California while his beautiful wife, Diana, and their small girl, Tam, are in the East. He gets a letter from Diana and begins to suspect all is not right. On his return home, Frank finds Diana is in love with Ogden Penn. Frank tells her he will give her grounds for a divorce. Mary Hastings falls in her love for Diana to give up Penn and return to Frank. Diana has difficulty in making up her mind what to do. Mrs. Langham tells her of an early love, Frank's dissipation begins to take effect on him. He develops a mania for auto speeding.

"What a fool I am," she thought. "Why couldn't I admit in the first place that I'd been wicked? Frank would have done nothing but forgive me and urge me to divorce him as fast as he could talk. It's pretending you are right when you know perfectly well you are wrong that infuriates people more than anything else.

Diana had done more than disarm her husband. She had given him the feeling that he had been magnanimous. The more he thought of how she had blamed herself the less he found himself blaming her. Between the gravity of the interlocutory and final decrees, he found not only the wish but the courage to paint a picture.

It has been remarked that little Mrs. Herriot was too wise to marry a man like Frank Manners; but when the divorce had been made final she had the curiosity to see what he would do.

The hot Summer was over and he had taken her for a long run up the Hudson to see the first flashes of Autumn color. He was a free man now, free to marry whom he chose, free to make a new life for himself. But he was not really free.

The law could not make stop loving, and though Diana had said that she could not take a penny of his money and that Tam was to be shared equally between them, still the fact remained that her lawyers had so confused her intentions and understanding that the Court ended by awarding her a heavy alimony and the absolute custody of the child.

As to the causes which had led to the rupture between Manners and his wife, Mrs. Herriot could never satisfy herself. She knew very well that the gentle, affectionate man whose mistress she was loved some other woman. She believed that he still loved the woman who had been his wife. And once, because she was naturally good-hearted and generous, she had said: "Look here, Frank, tell me sure there's no way you can make it up with her?"

He had answered, "I am living entirely in the present, and the future. That this is so is entirely my fault. That's enough for even a very sweet and trustworthy little person to know."

"But you'd give your soul to be back where you were?"

He did not answer.

"Tell me one thing, Frank. Did she fall in love with another man?"

Precisely as the gay old gentleman in the play chokes the pretty parlor-maid under the chin so Frank Manners chucked pretty Mrs. Herriot, and in addition laughed at her.

"Suppose you stop trying all these short-cuts to knowledge," he said, "and go by the regular cruisy-wisy road? In short, read the newspapers. They will tell you that Mr. Manners has wronged Mrs. Manners, that there is a woman in the case, but that it has not been necessary to name her. If you think there is more to the case than that, suppose you go direct to the referee and ask him."

Husband's Fight to Keep Love of Fickle Wife

Her Own Way

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

LAKE asked me if you did not hail from the provinces. He called you 'a Puritan maiden' or some poetic title like that. And of course people wonder about you."

"In other words," Helen said recentifully, "I look like a country girl in the city! I hate it! Has any one else remarked upon this peculiarity of mine?"

Elizabeth hesitated. "Yes, Luther Willard mentioned it," she admitted. As she spoke Helen recalled that her friend had seemed averse to having Luther and her country guest thrown together. "I forget just what he said," Elizabeth added, "but it was to the effect that you evidently came from New England."

Helen sat in silent thought for a while. She was wondering about herself!

Whatever it was that made her different from these other people must be corrected. She had come to New York to be a New Yorker—not to be a bucolic maiden.

"Betty," she said abruptly, "I want to shake off that village atmosphere. As I just said, I hate it. I do not want to seem so green and ignorant. That is not the way to succeed in a big city, is it? Tell me honestly."

"It certainly is not," Elizabeth agreed. "You lack repeated daring, Nell—since you ask me to be honest with you. For instance, if that man had spoken to me today I would have jollied him a bit."

"But I don't know how," Helen complained. "How could you have 'jollied' him—as you call it—without making him think you were not a nice girl?"

"You poor innocent!" Elizabeth scoffed. "That kind of thing speaks for itself. A man would no more think that you were not 'nice' than he would think that a domestic pigeon was a buzzard! Remember that! You could easily have said gently and quietly, 'I beg your pardon, but you have the advantage of me. I don't remember having met you before.'

"That would have given you a chance to see what he was like, and if he remembered the incident of that other night. You could easily have got rid of him afterward. You could even have spoken of your husband waiting for you at Terriberry's store—if you wanted to make a fool of the man."

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. Forbes

What can be done to help business?

A great deal!

In reply to many requests for specific suggestions as to what ought to be done to infuse life into business, I recently compiled a list of twenty concrete recommendations, and as the subject is of supreme importance, from every point of view, at this time, it will not be out of place to present the list in this column.

Let me precede it by saying that some of the suggestions may be open to theoretical objections. But desperate diseases sometimes demand desperate cures. We are confronted today, not with a theory, but with a condition, a condition which demands the attention and aggressive co-operation of every class in the community, from President Harding and his associates, down through the financial and business worlds to the humblest toiler, for the danger of allowing things to drift much longer is such that one shrinks from contemplating the possible consequences.

HERE ARE TWENTY CONCRETE SUGGESTIONS; you may not agree with all of them, but you probably will agree with most of them—and, of more importance, perhaps you will feel more inclined to throw off all thought of resignation and lethargy, and put your shoulder to the wheel:

* * *

1—Reduce Federal Reserve discount rates. (This is being done).

2—Grant bank loans to sound commercial borrowers on easier terms. (Rates have eased a little during the last few days).

3—Cease exacting such abnormal terms from corporations and others needing new capital.

4—Let the government co-operate promptly and effectively with the War Finance Corporation to the end that it may furnish credits on a substantial scale to facilitate the exportation of cotton, grain, and other commodities.

5—Expediate the launching and the operation of the Foreign Trade Financing Corporation by the country's bankers as an aid to the exportation of manufactures, raw materials, etc.

6—Hasten some definite arrangement for handling the forthcoming German reparation bonds and also for handling the Allies' debts to us. (Progress is now promised).

7—Let the administration immediately apply the pruning knife to governmental expenses, regardless of whose feelings may be hurt.

8—Get into grips with the shipping situation forthwith, to reduce the continuous drain on the National treasury. (Chairman Lasker of the U. S. Shipping Board is getting into grips with this).

9—Hasten action on Britain's, Japan's and our own Senate's proposal for curtailing frenzied expenditure of armaments.

10—Stop all plans for rearing "tariff" walls which would make it impossible for foreign nations to meet their crushingly heavy obligations here. A sensible tariff, based not on pre-war conditions but on the entirely different conditions of today, is a consideration of the first importance.

11—Take up tax reform measures with the least possible delay.

12—Responsible leaders in industries still trying to enforce unduly high prices should reduce prices to bedrock forthwith, thus removing prevailing uncertainties and stimulating a fresh buying movement. Such industries embrace anthracite coal, iron and steel products, heavy machinery, paper, cement, brick, window glass, coke, tin plate, furniture, hardware, floor coverings, etc.

13—Retail merchants who have not already relented should no longer attempt to extort war-time prices from consumers, thus discouraging consumption and, as a consequence, reducing employment.

14—Railway wages, coal miners' wages, and wages in other industries which are certain to come down, should be reduced as speedily as possible so as to hasten reductions in costs and in railway rates, in coal prices and in prices for other products affected.

15—Pay promptly the enormous sums the government owes the railroads.

16—Corporations not compelled to do so through financial stress should not pass or reduce any dividends, for such action has far-reaching effect upon security quotations, upon sentiment, and upon business.

17—Let no concern throw more workers out of employment unless absolutely obliged to do so through force of circumstances.

18—If the powerful interests identified with various companies whose stocks are being fiercely attacked by professional speculators who have gone heavily short, could extend enough support to their securities to administer severe punishment to the destructionists, the effect would be most salutary all around.

19—While "Buy now" campaigns rarely accomplish substantial results, a nation-wide movement of this kind, properly sponsored and prosecuted, could do something towards dispelling the prevailing pessimism and hasten the revival of activity which everyone confidently counts upon by and by.

20—Finally, let us all work harder than we have ever worked before.

RAILS IMPROVE, MOTORS UP

Steels, Oils and Equipments Show Losses in a Quiet Morning Market

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

Stocks were irregular in New York at noon, but the tone was rather heavy. Prices were not much above the lowest level of the morning. There was no rally of consequence in the second hour, although rails improved and motors showed gains as a rule. Trading was quiet and not as broad as usual. Call money opened at 5 per cent. Foreign exchange rates went up, demand sterling advancing 3¼ cents to $3.76¾.

Among weakest issues were U. S. Rubber, Mexican Petroleum, Baldwin, American Sugar, Goodrich, Tobacco Products, Sears Roebuck and American Woolen common. They were off from one to more than three points, U. S. Rubber showing the largest loss. Strong stocks included American Smelting, Chandler, Chesapeake & Ohio, Northern Pacific and Southern Pacific. They had advanced from fractions to more than a point.

Small gains were the rule at the opening and the market began with a strong tone. All initial changes were upward with very few exceptions. The advance was due to buying orders which accumulated over Sunday. Covering of shorts was not resumed to any extent, as the technical position had been rectified to a considerable degree late last week. Some profit taking helped check the upward movement and there was a resumption of short selling on the part of bears, who can see no material change in matters affecting the market except easier money. Funds are plenty and the rate comparatively low, but this is no great benefit for bulls with the public holding aloof and a general indisposition to buy except at bargain prices.

TREND CHANGED QUICKLY.

The trend had a quick transition. Irregularity soon prevailed and before the end of an hour the market verged on weakness. Steels and tires in particular had a reactionary tendency, while oils dropped. The decline was slow and a lower level was reached by easy stages. Rails, tobaccos and specialties were the last to yield and motors showed considerable resistance. Fluctuations on both movements were narrow, being confined in most instances to about a point. Mexican Petroleum was the most active oil. Crucible led steels. U. S. Rubber got the most attention in the tire group and Studebaker was the trading feature among motors. Baldwin was under pressure from the start and one of the weakest issues on the list. Considerable business was done in the stock loan market after the close on Saturday, profit taking having resulting in the calling in of considerable stock.

Dividend Declarations

New York Transportation Company declared dividend of 50 cents, payable July 15 to stock of record July 1, from surplus.

Pilgrim Mills declared quarterly dividends of $2 per share on preferred and common, payable June 30; stock of record June 25.

Curb Market Under Cover

New York, June 27.—Considerable confusion attended the official opening of the new Curb market exchange here today. Heretofore the Curb market transacted its business in the open on Broad street. Today the exchange moved into its new spacious quarters on Trinity street. An official Curb ticker was placed in operation, but few of the traders knew what the abbreviations signified and as a result it was nearly impossible to get any quotations. The first official transaction to appear on the tape was 100 shares of Maracaibo Oil at 25½. Trading was quite active during the first hour and then turned dull.

Wall Street Briefs

The Equitable Trust Company of New York has received about $500,000 in gold from Europe, the consignment being brought by the Red Star liner Kroonland.

Canadian Consolidated Cotton Mills deferred the quarterly dividend due July 1 on the 8 per cent. preferred stock to conserve financial resources.

During the June 22 week shipment of gold from London to New York totalled £611,200.

The United States Rubber Company is expected to reduce its floating debt to [illegible]000 by the end of 1921.

TONE IS FIRMER IN BOSTON

But Local Market Remains Dull and Narrow; Curb Has Irregular Trend

After a quiet opening the Boston market remained in a rut throughout the first hour. Almost all active issues were unchanged on first transactions. The tone seemed to improve a little, although there was not enough movement to indicate any tendency. The few material price alterations were mostly gains. Trading was dull and narrow all the forenoon. Gains of from one to two points were made by Calumet and Arizona, Old Dominion, Massachusetts Gas, Boston and Maine, American Sugar common and New England Telephone. Mexican Investment receded a point.

The Curb had a very fairly brisk beginnin, but activity on this exchange was short lived. It was irregular at the opening, but with gains predominating. Early leaders were Boston & Montana, Eureka and United Verde Extension. Among those to advance at once were Chief, Cascade, Crystal, Denbigh, Mutual, South American Gold and United Verde Extension. Losses on initial sales were shown by Alpha, Verde Mines, Eureka, Hecla Divide, Homa and Ranier.

At the end of an hour Boston & Montana was up 1 cent at 52 cents, Eureka 1 cent at 33 cents, Crystal 3 cents at 36 cents, Seven Metals 1 cent at 7 cents and United Verde Extension ½ at 22½. Among declines were Alpha 1 cent at 79 cents and Hecla Divide 1 cent at 7 cents. Verde Mines had recovered its loss.

BRITAIN FACES TRADE CRISIS

By E. V. HICKEY,

Export Manager of the Gillette Safety Razor Company.

London, June 27.—Poor "Merrie England!" Still desperately and vainly trying to get back on her feet more than two years after the actual cessation of her life-and-death grapple with her bitterest world competitor.

Bewildered at her total inability to readjust her own economic and industrial life, staggering from the body-blow dealt her in the loss of her great foreign trade, gazing with almost childish helplessness at the flames of revolt breaking out all over her great empire—in Ireland, in Egypt, in India, in Mesopotamia,—her sterling-exchange weak and facing even greater weakness, her burden of taxation so stupendous, so ghastly, that her people are crying aloud for relief, England today is facing an infinitely more powerful and more deadly assault than was even launched by Hohenzollern and Hindenburg.

During the past six months conditions have reached a crisis in the coal industry. Italy, always a large consumer of British coal, bought her entire supply from America and Germany, despite the latter's cry of coal scarcity. English mine owners could not meet the prices of their foreign competitors, and in order to dispose of their product at all, many owners ran their mines at no profit.

The violence of these economic and industrial disturbances in Britain has for the time being blinded the eyes of the British public to a condition fully as serious in another direction, namely, the collapse of their foreign trade.

WALL STREET GOSSIP

By MONITOR

NEW YORK, June 27.—There is one particularly significant development which may portend a wholly changed outlook for one stock. Since last October Atlantic Gulf and West Indies officials had sought in vain to obtain funds to relieve their immediate necessities. Within a few days from the opening of negotiations this money was obtained and there is the suggestion in influential quarters that the control of the company may have passed to important interests.

THE trading element is watching closely developments in the oil industry. Ordinarily, this country has only about two months' supply of crude on hand. The present supply of 176,000,000 barrels is approximately double the usual quantity. Operations have ceased in a number of producing fields, and it is understood some of the largest producers in the mid-continent field, as well as in the Oklahoma and California fields will close down during the coming month.

TO resume production requires an even longer time than to close down a well. If the oil supply of the country now in storage is sufficient to carry only through October and production is greatly curtailed, oil men say there may be a real scarcity of oil next Fall. It is no secret that the Standard Oil Company has been storing large quantities, and other large users of crude who have had funds available have followed this example. This potential shortage next Fall may be the reason for much of the important buying which has occurred in the domestic oils, particularly Pacific Oil and Cosden.

THERE was considerable selling of Baldwin Locomitive Saturday on publication of a report that American manufacturers were being underbid more than 30 per cent. on European business by German manufacturers. This short selling, following a decline of 30 points, gave the necessary foundation for Saturday's advance of more than five points. From Saturday's low practically eight points were added to that price.

WEAKNESS in Chandler Motors, which carried that issue below 49, was a restraining influence on the other motor shares in the early trading. With the development of strength in the general list Chandler advanced above 51 and Studebaker to 74. This is the level at which important interests began disposing of their holdings on the recent advance above 77.

STIMULATION of buying in the steel stocks came on the announcement that the Sinclair Oils Company had placed an order with the Chicago Bridge & Iron Works for twenty-five storage tanks of 55,000 barrels each. Harry F. Sinclair issued a very optimistic statement on the oil industry in particular and on general business conditions.

THE bank statement of the Clearing House members for this week gives an indication of the prevailing ease in call money rates. It is distinctly disappointing in view of the widely advertised funds available for day to day loans. The surplus shows a decrease of $20,438,200. Loans and discounts are down about $14,500,000, demand deposits are down $46,500,000 and time deposits show a decrease of $13,500,000. Reserve in Federal Reserve member banks shows a decrease of nearly $27,000,000. In view of this statement it becomes evident that the ease in call money rates has been due to the deposit of funds here against July 1 disbursements.

MANUFACTURERS of small tools are showing considerable concern over the inroads made in their domestic business by imports from France. Included in the large stores of military goods which were sold by the United States Government to France at an insignificant price were many of these tools. They are now being re-shipped to this country and sold here at prices varying from one-third to one-half less than domestic manufacturers quote. New England seems to have been the principal point for the disposal of these supplies and New England has long been one of the principal markets for the small tool manufacturers of the country. This is one phase of the foreign competition problem which Wall street is watching.

Evans Says Breakdown of Export Companies Shows Need of U. S. Awakening

By C. R. EVANS.

Chicago, June 27.—Foreign commerce is getting a bad name, not, indeed, through its own fault, but through the exalted notions regarding it that many Americans had during and after the war and through the course of events which has led people all over the world to restrict the consumption of all articles that we have for sale.

Many are joining in the abhorrence expressed by an American statesman who said: "Who cares for abroad?" "Abroad" has managed to stack up $15,000,000,000 of money that came from the United States and we must consider that "Abroad" has the best of the game.

BREAKDOWN OF EXPORTS.

Never has there been such a breakdown as that of the export companies. Those that have not distinctively gone broke have quietly bowed themselves out of creation, as for example the Foreign Trade Banking Corporation, the pioneer discount bank in the United States, capitalized at $2,200,000. It is rather a joke on those of us who do not believe in much government participation in business that the War Finance Corporation, a distinctly government affair, is actively at work, just announcing three advances of $4,000,000 to finance exports. The diatribe of George M. Reynolds against the promotion of foreign trade at the dinner with the President the other day is in a degree justified.

As illustrating our inflated ideas of such things a Chicago banker remarked when one of these export companies got an order for $250,000 worth of merchandise it would send along another $250,000 for the somebody that might want to buy. That sort of thing doubtless accounts in a measure for the vast quantities of our goods lying useless in South America.

PROCESS OF LABOR.

This country is going to have a great part in the international commerce, but it must go through a long process of labor, experiment, experience, as other nations have. Our record up to the opening of the World War was a good one and we could have gone on indefinitely building and building slowly and safely.

Britain, the greatest exampler in that line, has been a thousand years in getting to its present position. Now that nation is all over the world. It takes part of other countries and spins them into thread, weaves them into fabrics, fashions them into steel rails or other conveniences and sends them back to their native places.

That is one great miracle in economic history, but Britain is intimate with all oceans and continents and was for a period long antecedent to the organization of our government. Britain stands on the sanded floor of Sahara or in the mountains of India with the same grace that Chesterfield walked the streets of London.

WHAT U. S. MUST FACE.

Well, we have our cotton and wheat and meat that Europe must buy. We can spin and forge (and counterfeit) to any extent to which the rest of the world is willing to take our goods, and if we don't work too hard (of which there appears to be little danger at the present time) we shall not have a burdensome surplus. But we must get back to first principles, simple methods and a sense of the competition of countries longer in the game than we.

The stock market seemed to be glad Saturday that this foreign trade nightmare was in the main a thing of the past. Everybody is satisfied that we have seen the worst of the consequences of our beautiful dream. Open and avowed bankruptcy in any interest is much less hurtful to its neighbors than any protracted period of uncertainty.

But the companies that were well in the export trade before the war are still there and will be for an indefinite period—such concerns as the United States Steel Corporation, the Harvester Company and American Radiator.

ECONOMY IN LITTLE THINGS.

One of the newer concerns which has been in considerable touch with the export trade, the Stewart-Warner Speedometer Corporation of this city, excites curiosity by an advertisement that "we must dispose of some brand new office furniture at far below present market prices."

The list of goods is presented, embellished with recommendations of their quality. One hears also of manufacturing companies that are selling steel.

It therefore appears that curtailment, economy, if you please, is handed down to the small things and that little is expected of business in the near future.

Anthracite Production

From January 1 to June 11 this year anthracite production is figured by the Geological Survey to have totaled 41,109,000 tons, being estimated at 2,000,000 more than for the corresponding 1920 period. So far in 1921 year the bituminous output has been at the rate of 400,000,000 a year, as compared with 556,613,000 tons in 1920, 458,063,000 in 1919 and 579,385,820 in 1918.

Railroad Reports

Gross of the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Road decreased more than $1,000,000 in the first four months of this year, as compared with the like period of 1920. The loss was in spite of increased rates and indicates a great falling off in traffic. No improvement is looked for in the report for May.

For the third June week the Canadian Pacific reports $204,000 decrease in gross.

The Flint Belt Railway has applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to issue $1,000,000 capital stock to fiance new construction.

For 1920 the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic line reports a deficit of $5,275 against net of $27,760 for 1919.

The development of the El Dorado oil field in Arkansas has increased the earnings of the Rock Island Road from $25,000 to about $500,000 a month, while its traffic receipts from Duncan and Comanche, Oklahoma, have expanded from $30,000 to $350,000.

City Loans

Newport, Rhode Island, will receive bids until 5 p. m., June 28, for the purchase, at discount, of a temporary loan of $100,000 dated June 30 and maturing September 6, 1921.

Haverhill, Mass., will receive proposals until 10 a. m., June 29, for $180,000 of municipal loan bonds, dated June 1, 1921, and maturing annually from 1922 to [illegible] inclusive, bidder to name interest rate.

Gaston Fears Tariff Will Boost H. C. L.

Higher taxes, National or State, will mean political suicide for the party in power and bankruptcy for many business men, according to Colonel William A. Gaston, who declared that Massachusetts Republicans are in favor of going back to the old protective tariff policies.

He said that a high tariff as proposed will make the cost of living higher for everybody, destroy our ability to build up export trade, kill Europe's capacity to pay us interest or buy our goods in exchange and condemn our merchant marine to rot.

As an alternative Colonel Gaston suggested cutting down the waste, reducing taxes, and the number of government employes and on this foundation beginning the real work of reconstruction.

BANKERS TOUR NEW YORK

500 New England Financiers Visit Metropolis as Guests of Shawmut Bank

New York, June 27.—Vice-President Coolidge will be greeted at Hotel Commodore here tonight by 500 New England bank officials and their wives and daughters. He will be the guest of honor and the chief orator at a formal dinner to be held as a feature of a three-day "June party" given under the joint auspices of National Shawmut Bank of Boston and the management of Hotel Commodore.

There will be other speakers, but "Cal" is to be the big attraction. The hosts tonight will be President Bowman and Vice-President Sweeney of the hotel staff. Dancing will follow the dinner.

The old saw about "the better the day" applied to the Sabbath opening of festivities yesterday. If the balance of program sustains the pace set on the first day the success of the outing will be assured. All hands went to bed, vowing that they had had the time of their lives.

The river excursion proved enjoyable and instructive. Few visitors are privileged to make a complete detour of the Island of Manhattan by steamer as did the New England bankers yesterday.

Leaving the Battery with its gay freight, the steamer Correction, whose name suggested many a pun, sailed down the bay to Staten Island, where the bank men viewed with interest the gigantic dock development under way. Harbor boats saluted and through the courtesy of Fire Chief Kenlon every fireboat passed gave spectacular fire drills. Nozzle batteries threw powerful streams which formed water curtains.

New York officially welcomed the bankers and their ladies with wide-stretched arms. The utmost courtesy is being manifested everywhere. The city loaned a commodious steamer. Port, police and fire officials and every department touched by the program have been eager to share in the general spirit of hospitality.

It is one of the most unique junkets ever staged in New England. Vice-President Frank A. Newell of the National Shawmut Bank conceived the idea and put it across with a punch, aided by Vice-President Addison L. Winship and their corps of assistants.

In order to give expression to the growing confidence in the return of prosperity and the stability of general business conditions, the officials of the National Shawmut Bank of Boston decided to invite all of its New England correspondents to a seventy-two-hour sightseeing festival in the metropolis.

The list of guests included bank presidents, vice-presidents and cashiers and their wives from every corner of New England.

The big, happy family assembled in the reception hall and was treated to a heart-to-heart talk by Roy Hubbell, the popular manager of the Commodore. The guests were delighted with the appointments and accommodations of the city's newest hostelry.

Taxation of Freight

The Railway Age says that the Federal tax on freight is 3 per cent. of the railway rate, and amounted in 1920 to $129,750,000. The tax on passenger business is 8 per cent. of the railway rate, and amounted in 1920 to $103,320,000. "This," says this publication, "made a total tax that the government added to railway rates that shippers and passengers had to pay last year of $233,070,000. It was not a part of the rates and the railways did not get any part of it; they merely collected it for the government."

Government Silver Buying

Purchases under the Pittman act of the United States Treasury Department now total 60,485,697 ounces, or less than a third of the amount authorized by the measure. The $1 an ounce provision has been the sustaining force for white metal. Latest government purchases were 550,000 ounces for the mint in Denver and 300,000 for the one in San Francisco.

Slack Buying of Prints

Fall River reports that print cloth sales last week did not exceed 50,000 pieces, and mills are expected to extensively curtail production next month and in August. A September wage cut is predicted.

Agricultural Items

The Census Bureau reports that at the beginning of this year there were 66,810,334 head of cattle on farms in this country, an increase of about 5,000,000 in ten years.

Farm land in eight States averages more than $100 an acre in value, Iowa leads the list, its valuation being $227.09.

The wheat yield of Kansas will this year exceed 150,000,000 bushels, according to the latest estimate.

MATERNITY BILL UP TOMORROW

Hapgood Says Lodge May Possibly Delay Action on Measure in Senate

By NORMAN HAPGOOD

Staff Correspondent of the Boston American.

Washington, June 27.—The children of the nation, the mothers and not less their fathers are concerned in what happens in the Senate on Tuesday. On that day it will be decided whether or not that august body can be buncoed into standing against one of the most successful pieces of social work now being carried on.

NORMAN HAPGOOD

The Sheppard-Towner bill is commonly called the maternity bill. That is a good name. The bill provides for co-operation between the National government and the State governments to promote the care of maternity and infancy. Its main purpose is education. The result of the work which it continues has been to decrease infant mortality.

In these days the forces that can be mustered to oppose well-tested agencies for the protection of infant life are not numerous, but such as they are they have been gathered together to make a last stand on Tuesday. Their stand will be futile, but there may be enough of a fight to show the old guard in one of its well-known vaudeville turns. This turn is known as "viewing with alarm."

RELICS OF THE PAST.

Let us take a sympathetic look at these relics of a day that is done. First, and most active, is the national association opposed to woman suffrage. "But," you interrupt, "the question of woman suffrage has been already settled."

Yes, but the association is still in existence. Not having much hope of taking away the suffrage from the women it can devote itself to opposing every measure for human betterment that is supported by the women who formerly worked for suffrage.

This association is opposing the present bill. The reason seems to be that the bill is supported by the national league of women voters. Not having anything real to say against it, the anti-suffragists have gone so far in false statements that their actions have rebounded in favor of the bill.

FR. RYAN MISREPRESENTED.

For instance, it happens that one of the most distinguished citizens of this district, Father John A. Ryan, called the father of the minimum wage law, and backer of enlightened social work over a broad field, had not been actively concerned in the matter of the bill now under discussion.

The antis, through their paper, for some reason called "The Patriot," published quotations from a letter of Dr. Ryan's, with a misleading introduction, intending to indicate that Father Ryan and Catholics generally, were opposed to the bill.

This was too much. The misrepresentation had been preceded by another one, to serve as a basis. As is well known, the Catholics are opposed to birth control. The opponents of the bill, therefore, spread the charge that the Children's Bureau, which is in charge of the work in behalf of which the bill is drawn, had for one of its functions the teaching of birth-control.

BIRTH CONTROL AVOIDED.

It is difficult to believe that the antis were not fully aware that this was a complete falsehood. The whole subject of birth-control had been carefully avoided by the bureau, for the very reason that Catholics and Protestants work together in that bureau.

So Dr. Ryan was brought into the controversy by the ill-judged tactics of the antis. From a letter of protest against the misleading use of his name the following is an extract:

My own view is in harmony with that formally expressed by the National Catholic Welfare Council, when it endorsed the bill. I have seen no reason to reverse that view. Indeed, my favorable attitude toward the bill has been somewhat strengthened through my observation of certain sinister influences and their methods that are arrayed in active opposition."

The letter is signed John A. Ryan, director Social Action Department of the National Catholic Welfare Council.

LODGE'S EXPECTED MOVE.

The line of attack that has the best chance of making a little trouble on Tuesday grows, entertainingly enough, out of social pull. It is of course, well known that Senator Henry Cabot Lodge is related to all the bluest blood to be found within a radius of seven parasangs of Beacon Hill. The head of the antis in Boston is a highly and deservedly respected ornament of the same group.

This lady, who happens to be a sister of the president of Harvard University, has seen the great and good Henry Cabot Lodge and enlisted his sympathy. He is expected to try a smooth diversion on Tuesday by moving that the work be taken away from the children's bureau and lodged elsewhere; a method of slaughter not without precedent on the hill.

A few old-timers in the Senate are of the same view, but only a few. Brandegee is scheduled as one, and Shortridge as another. A person who met Mr. Brandegee the other day said to him: "This new man from California, Shortridge, seems to be a 100 per cent. old-type standpatter."

"Yes," Senator Brandegee is related to have answered. "He is fine. Very fine."

Among those energetically in favor of the Sheppard-Towner bill is Warren G. Harding, President of the United States.

Boston Wool Shipments

Wool shipments from Boston, from January 1 to June 23, this year, totaled 64,133,300 pounds, against 84,437,200 pounds for the corresponding 1920 period. Receipts are figured by the Commercial Bulletin at 215,515,12[illegible] pounds, against 170,[illegible] pounds.

'GETS HIS MAN' ON FORGERY CHARGES

A man hunt, starting in Navajo County, Arizona, finally led Sheriff Robert Lee Newman to Boston, where he arrested Preston Simms, a half-breed Mexican on a charge of forging checks totalling nearly $1,300.

While Newman admits the money involved was hardly worth the trip across the continent, he declares that in his State when they "start after a man they generally get him."

PASS COUNTERFEIT IN FEDERAL COURT

Providence, June 27.—Counterfeit money has been passed in many places, but the latest place for it to get by is in the United States district court here. A counterfeit bill was passed by a defendant who had been fined and in consequence bills paid into the court are now being carefully scrutinized. The bill passed was a $2 note raised to one of $10 denomination. The bad money was not detected until it had reached the bank and then court officials could not determine who passed it.

TROTZKY PREDICTS NAVAL WAR IN 1924

London, June 27.—Maritime rivalry between England and America will lead to a naval clash between the two in 1924. This prediction was made by Leon Trotzky in addressing the Communist Congress, according to a dispatch from Moscow to the Daily Herald.

Trotzky declared that capital is disintegrating, and described America as a "swollen gourmand."

Mary in Tears When News of Victory Arrived

Mary Pickford and husband "Doug" have gone in for bicycle riding as a recreation. Judging from their smiles, divorce court decisions give them little worry.

Los Angeles, June 27.—Nearly everybody knew that Mary Pickford had won the first round of her fight with the State of Nevada before Mary Pickford did.

At her studio soon after the news of her victory had reached Los Angeles from the little town of Minden, Nev., where she obtained her divorce from Owen Moore, Mary Pickford was in tears.

The part Mary was playing called for tears. The studio orchestra had been playing sad pieces. The director had been telling pitiful stories about burning orphan asylums, Mary was responding with real wet tears, and the camera was registering them.

When the scene was finished, Mary, still sobbing, sank into a chair on the set and somebody handed her a telegram.

The telegram was from Mr. Gavin of San Francisco, Mary Pickford's attorney. It was the first news she had heard of the court's decision.

"What are you thinking of?" she was asked, as she sat smiling through her tears.

"I'm thinking it's a lucky day," said Mary.

Douglas Fairbanks was "working out" on the horizontal bars in his gym at the Fairbanks' studio when asked how he liked Judge Langan's quash.

"I think it's great," said Doug jumping the bar, "let's have that a notch higher."

NORTH ADAMS GIRL SERIOUSLY BURNED

North Adams, June 27.—As a result of severe burns received when her dress caught fire from a brush blaze near which she was playing, Mary Milski, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Milski of Rand street, is in a critical condition at the North Adams Hospital.

LASKER TO USE $250,000 OF OWN

Plans to Put Shipping Board on Business Basis by Hiring Steamship Man

Washington, June 27.—To put the Shipping Board on a business basis, Albert D. Lasker, the new chairman, will use $250,000 of his own fortune in employing successful business executives who cannot be attracted by the limited government salaries.

This was learned exclusively by Universal Service from an authoritative source close to the chairman, but could not be confirmed from Mr. Lasker himself owing to his absence from the city.

Of significance, however, are dispatches from New York where Mr. Lasker spent Saturday in search of a new director of operations.

These quote the Shipping Board chairman as saying that a practical steamship man with an outstanding record will be engaged. "Such a man will be paid a salary in accordance with that which he is entitled to receive from a private company," Mr. Lasker declared.

LODGE BACKS PLEA OF POSTAL CLERKS

Inequalities in the salaries of post-office clerks will be corrected by the Steenerson bill, which will be backed by Senator Lodge when it comes up in the Senate today, according to advices received by officers of Local 100, National Federation of Post-office Clerks. The bill has already passed the House.

In a petition submitted to Senator Lodge, the clerks' representatives in Boston point out the obvious injustice of junior clerks receiving more pay than senior employes.

LAWRENCE KENNEDY BURIED TOMORROW

The funeral of Lawrence Kennedy, well known former Boston liquor dealer, who died suddenly in the sun-house of the L-street baths in South Boston, will be held tomorrow from his home, No. 57 Strathmore road, Roxbury. A solemn requiem mass will be held at St. Aidan's church.

"Larry," as he was known, was prominent in politics in Ward 25 in Brighton. He was in business on Eliot street, and later at No. 408 Massachusetts avenue. He consistently refused election to public offfices which was offered to him.

BERKSHIRES FIRE MENACE GROWING

Westfield, June 27.—The growing peril of forest fires owing to the protracted drought has caused District Fire Warden Albert P. Ordway to appeal to the people of the district to be extremely careful not to start a fire. One sawmill owner has been summoned for failure to obey the law directing arresters on all smokestacks. All fire lookout stations in this district have been reopened.

COLORED KELLEY HAS RICH BROGUE

Plays Irish Reels as Surgeons Extract Bullet From Wound in Thigh

Oscar J. Kelley, a harmonica-playing negro claiming Ireland as his birthplace, is the centre of interest in a ward in City Hospital today.

Kelly, who is a physical giant, went to the hospital to have a bullet extracted from his thigh. The wound was inflicted, he explained, in a "family conference" with Frank Tatoon, his step-son.

He refused an anaesthetic but demanded his trusty harmonica instead and propped up on the operating table he played the jigs and reels of Erin with all the spirit of a son of "the old sod," while the operation was being performed.

Oscar thoroughly enjoyed the wonder he evoked among the physicians when he told them his last name. Kelleys with black eyes are no rarity, but—the doctors were amazed when Oscar addressed them in a brogue as rich and strong as a noggin of mountain dew.

Tatoon pleaded not guilty when arraigned in Municipal Court on a charge of assault and battery with a loaded revolver. His case was continued for one week, and he was released in $1,000 bail. He was represented by Attorney Benjamin.

UNCLE SAM PLANTS POSTERITY FOREST

Tacoma, June 27.—While this is garden time in the great Northwest, Uncle Sam started last week on a little garden planting venture that covers an area of approximately 400 acres in the mountains near Tacoma and which will be ready for harvest about one hundred years from now.

This is one of the initial efforts of the government towards reforestation, and it is understood that this the lumber industry of the country will be continued along a greater scale.

BRUSH FIRE FIGHT AIDED BY RAIN

The rain yesterday came as a welcome relief to the Concord firemen, who put in a strenuous night Saturday battling brush fires, the department being called out no less than six times. It was about midnight before the last blaze was extinguished. They were called twice to White's Pond, where about twenty acres were burned over, three times to Lake Walden, and another drama was sounded for a slight fire underneath a Concord, Maynard & Hudson Street Railway car in Monument square, in the centre of the town.

McKibben to Teach

J. A. McKibben, general secretary of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, will be one of the instructors at the national school for commercial secretaries to be held this Summer at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill.

Mary Garden Relates How Composers Impress Her

The sixteenth instalment of Mary Garden's picture of her own life, as sketched by the famous opera singer herself for the readers of the Hearst newspapers, is given below:

By MARY DOUGHERTY.

"Though I have made some of my greatest successes in operas from the pen of Massenet, he is a man who does not interest me in the slightest.

"To him everybody — everybody — is 'glorious' . . . Everybody 'sings divinely.'

"He tells everybody exactly the same things, therefore his compliments are without value.

"He is very nervous, talks about everything and likes to patronize . . . . therefore a bore!

"Saint-Saens is a very hard, unsympathetic man . . . but straight as a die. He speaks what he thinks, or says nothing.

"When he wrote . . . 'you are Helene . . . all flame, all passion, all desire . . . exactly what I want . . . you can be sure he never said that to anybody else. He is a man of very few words. . . . but for his sincerity I can forgive him all.

"I rather like Saint-Saens.

Debussy a Genius With Tender Heart

"Debussy is a marvelous genius . . . with a heart as tender as a child . . . and as hard as a stone.

"One day when we were standing together in my drawing room I saw a dirty fly crawling up my curtain. I struck it with a paper and killed it. As I did so Debussy cried, 'Mary, Mary, don't kill a fly . . . never kill anything. Let it live . . . Yet—

"A few years later when his own wife had shot herself FOR HIM . . . and lay dying on the floor, he would not cross the room to look at her. So much for Debussy!

Camille Erlanger a Glorious Musician

"Camille Erlanger, whose Aphrodite I created, was a man after my own heart . . . charming . . . genial to those he liked . . . and very reticent about mingling with people.

"He was a remarkably sincere man, never said anything he did not mean, and was unusually courageous. Yet when the influenza swept over Europe he died of actual panic.

"In his death France lost a glorious musician . . . and a splendid man.

Fevrier Charming Richard Strauss, also

"Fevrier, whose 'Monna Vanna' I have given in Chicago, is a very charming man . . . a perfect dear, but not a man of character like Erlanger or Saint-Saens. He came to America expressly to see me create his Gismonda. He is now writing a new opera of America for America, which I hope to produce. Fevrier is a composer of great importance and great future.

"Richard Strauss, whose Salome I created, is a very charming man . . . Puccini made no impression on me whatever.

"Montmezzi, who is best known by 'The Love of Three Kings,' is, in my opinion, the greatest genius of the modern Italian school. Personally, he is a charming man and I am very fond of him.

"Montmezzi is writing a new opera to which I am looking forward with much eagerness. I believe in Montmezzi rests the future of Italy's music.

"Moret has just finished 'Lorenzaccio,' which I am to hear while I am abroad and which I may bring to Chicago. I believe Moret will some day be a great musician."

TELLS HOW CHICAGO FOUND WORLD NICHE

Chicago's marvelous growth from a township of less than 30,000 to the third largest city in the world, within the last half century, is set forth attractively in a souvenir book just published by Marshall Field & Co.

The book, entitled "Chicago, the Great Central Market," is a collection of editorials and illustrations from the Field Quality News, a monthly publication issued by the firm for its customers.

The story of the youngest of the world's largest cities is summarized impressively and accompanied by many sketches, ranging from the pioneer Fort Dearborn to the imposing buildings that mark the 20th century city. The great projects now developing under the direction of the Chicago Plan Commission are also illustrated and due note is taken of the commercial, industrial and artistic achievements that stand to the credit of the Middle West metropolis.

NEW ROXBURY POLITICAL CLUB

"Tomahawk Tim" Connolly Building Quarters; Hopes to Back Mayoralty Winner

Converting an old wooden business block into a modern and up-to-date headquarters for the militant Democrats of Ward 13 is the task that Tim Connolly, former acting Mayor of Boston and hero of many political scrimmages, has set out to do.

The building is located in the rear of former Councilman "Billy" Curtis' drug store, at Dudley and Clifton streets, Roxbury; and when completed will be the peer of Martin Lomasney's famous Hendricks Club on Green street, West End.

Connolly has again felt the call of the wild in the political field and has made up his mind to be with a winner in a Mayoralty fight.

Political sleuths from all sections of the city have their eyes focussed on Tim's latest venture in the clubroom line and are wondering who the "angel" is that is backing his new clubroom. He admits that he contemplates christening the auditorium "Donovan Hall," in honor of the late Edward J. Donovan, who was defeated for Mayor by John F. Fitzgerald.

Connolly refuses to tell who his candidate for Mayor is or who his followers will support.

A feature of the remodelling process of the new clubhouse is the mammoth platform of concrete being erected in front of the structure. There is an incline leading up to the platform for automobiles. The area in front of the platform is spacious enough to accommodate 2,500 persons.

"I'm not showing my hand yet," said Connolly, as he smeared some plaster on the walls of the club with a trowel he received while acting Mayor during the administration of the late Josiah Quincy in 1898.

"You can say for me that I have my eyes and ears open and am following the career of Fire Commissioner John R. Murphy and the other aspirants for mayoralty honors. I'm not unmindful of the fact that women will be the deciding factor in the coming contest and have arranged to give them representation on my delegations."

From present indications Connolly's new club will outdistance other clubs in the quest of political preferment.

Various Matters, Briefly

Why Are Our Soldiers in Europe?

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

The State Department in Washington denies any knowledge of the treaty now making between England and Japan. It was said that England was telling Secretary Hughes, most kindly, just what she was doing about that treaty, but it seems no information has come. Of course it would interest the United States to know just what arrangement is being made between the fleets of Japan and England, just as it would interest England to get the facts if this country were making a treaty of offence and defence with Ireland.

George Bernard Shaw in an article published last week says that Lloyd George's treaty with Japan is practically a declaration of war against the United States. It is not quite as bad as that, and England is not quite as silly as that. But it looks as though England were making a treaty that might some day compel her ships to come out farther from the harbor than they did in the late war.

In connection with "Republican economy" can anybody tell why we are keeping thousands of American soldiers in Europe? What are they doing there? What is the need of them? Why should citizens be taxed to pay their expenses? Do you know of anything much more foolish just now than an American army in Europe?

The Duchess Decazes, you learn from Universal Service, organized a grand entertainment to cost half a million francs. Rain would spoil it. For a small sum she insured herself with Lloyds against rain. It rained, and the company paid her 500,000 francs.

Lord Northcliffe once offered a prize of $50,000 to the first airship crossing the Channel. (That sounds strange now.) He insured himself for a trifle, and when the thing was done Lloyds paid the $50,000. At Lloyds you can insure yourself against anything, except your own foolishness. That, being NOT insurable, makes it easy for the poor to get rich and rich to get poor.

The newspapers are taking calmly the mysterious disappearance of more than twenty ships, suddenly vanishing. New York police and the State Department at Washington seem to take seriously the suggestion of Russian responsibility for the mysterious vanishing ships. It would not be hard probably to put a majority of Bolshevists in a crew, arrange for them to seize the ships and sail for a Russian port. But it sounds more like a nightmare than a reality. What IS the explanation?

Flying machines carrying dynamite date from yesterday. Battleships are older than the Spanish armada. The other day a flying machine, in a test, dropping dynamite, proved good marksmanship and destroyed a submarine in eleven minutes. In a few years battleships against flying machines will have as much chance as overfed geese against eagles.

How long will it take those in charge of this country's defence to realize that fact? The English and French, who know it already, are perfectly willing to discontinue battleship building. Their energy is concentrated on flying machines, the real fighting ships.

"Babe" Ruth, affectionately referred to by sporting writers as the "Bambino," knocked a baseball 475 feet from the home plate, and destroyed all records. There was a day when that would have had a meaning, when a man's life depended on the force and accuracy with which he could throw a stone, or hurl a javelin. Now it is the "Big Bertha" throwing a bullet seventy-five miles that counts, and the flying machine dropping asphyxiating gas. The "Bambino" of baseball is important because the average mind is still living back with the javelin thrower.

The price of sugar is cut below six cents. Before long perhaps, the old days will return, when mail order houses offered 100 pounds of sugar for $3, three cents a pound, with $10 worth of groceries. Some banks are in the sugar business and wish they had never heard of it. They lent money on sugar at twenty-five cents a pound, in a regular business way. One has just taken a loss of $3,000,000 on a small 5,000-ton lot of sugar. Everybody will sympathize with the speculator, as a Christian should, but it is a comfort to know that occasionally supply and demand does work out.

Reckless "L" Motormen

Numerous complaints have been heard recently concerning the reckless way in which many of the Boston Elevated motormen drive their cars on leaving the Andrew square tunnel. No less than six times during the past six weeks the emergency crew has been called to repair trolley wires that were torn from the supports and endangered the lives of passengers and those who happened to be on the street.

In every instance the broken wires have been the result of careless men in charge of the cars, who cause the trolleys to be thrown off the overhead wires, while the cars continue for many yards, crashing into and tearing the wires. In some cases the cars have been made to jump the track.

Inklings and Thinklings

"What is the mean temperature here?" asked the traveler who was seeing California for the first time.

"My dear sir," the native son replied, "we haven't any here."

Music may have charms to soothe the savage breast, but the man who lives above a player piano and under a victrola ought to receive the benefit of the doubt when he claims that he is not a savage.

Conceited people wouldn't be so obnoxious if they were not always trying to take the conceit out of others.

To the Editor

Regarding Mr. Gompers

Editor Boston American:

I notice that you say Mr. Gompers and Mr. Dixon are Englishmen in everything but their residence in America, and you are quite right. But I want to inform you that I was born in England and I consider the British government the worst robbing, plundering and murdering government in the history of the world. You also say that organized labor needs new leaders, and I agree with you. Mr. Gompers did all he could to please Mr. Wilson and the British government. What has Mr. Gompers done for labor? He was one that helped to disrupt the Knights of Labor, the best labor organization the American people ever had.

Stars and Stripes

Why is it that expecting a small nation to give up its territorial claims always reminds us of ordering a small boy to wash away the dirt behind his ears?

"The bride wore," so the paper said,
"A veil and rope of pearls."
She was less afraid of taking cold
Than lots of other girls.

A homely girl is her own chaperone.

Seems to be some job to take the "hic" out of Chicago.

This country's dry,
That much is clear;
You have to die
To find your bier.

"Washington will soon take steps to end profiteering," says a dispatch. But the profiteers have already taken not only the steps but the front porch.

There was once a man who never lied to his wife, but that was because he died a bachelor.

"The girls these days put on a great many airs," remarked the boulevardier.

"Well," said his friend, "it seems as though they ought to put on something.

The Ghost of Dead Loves

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

LIKE the tenth wave that offers to the shore
Accumulated opulence and force,
So does my heart, which thought it loved of yore,
Carry increasing passion down the course
Of Time to proffer thee.

Oh, not the faint
First ripple of the sea should be its pride,
But the great climax of its unrestraint
Which culminates in one commanding tide.

The lesser billows of each crude emotion
Break on life's strand, recede, and then unite
With love's large sea, and to some late devotion
Unrecognized they bring their lost delight.
So all the vanished fancies of my past
Live yet in this one passion grand and vast.

London Crooks in Hard Luck

LONDON, June 27.—The gentlemen adventurers of London's underworld, who live by their wits, are having a hard fight for existence. This is the leanest year they have experienced since lambs were first sheared by modern methods.

Money is tight, and "mugs" are few. Pseudo-majors and simple Australian sheep farmers with a fortune to distribute to charity—with your assistance—sift the West End hungrily and unsuccessfully for their prey.

Gilded youths who usually contribute to the upkeep of these gentry by thinking they can play cards seem to have learned wisdom at last. Provincial visitors decline to go heavily into infallible schemes for the ruin of bookmakers. This lamentable drought is not due to any violent change in human nature.

But a "mug" without money is a useless thing. He may beg with tears in his eyes to be let in on a little scheme for turning one pound notes into fivers, but the necessity of having real cash puts him out of court—and incidentally this helps to keep out of court philanthropic new friends.

Eager watchful privateers are observed cruising up and down the tide of traffic between the Park and Piccadilly Circus, with occasional excursions further east; they are seen putting in at various ports of call between cocktail time and the closing of the bar. They scan the horizon with a keen, predatory eye. No stranger escapes them. If he shows the slightest sign of promise he is kept under observation; perhaps overhauled and taken in tow; weighed in various ways and given the chance of disclosing his status. Then, more often than not, he is cast adrift in disgust, and the privateer once more resumes his profitless vigil.

A New York lawyer entered his condemned client's cell. "Well," he said, "good news at last!"

"A reprieve?" asked the prisoner eagerly.

"No, but an uncle of yours has died leaving you $6,000, and you can go to your fate with the happy consciousness that the efforts of your lawyer in your behalf will not go unrewarded!"

ZAGHLUL IN SUPPORT OF EGYPTIAN REVOLT

By Universal Service.

LONDON, June 27.—If the whole revolt in Alexandria and the whole atmosphere of unrest in Egypt cannot be traced directly to the hand of Zaghlul Pasha, no one who has followed the recent course of events in that country can doubt that his shadow lies over both.

The outbreak is attributed to the disappointment of his followers that he had been excluded from the mission which Adly Pasha, the Egyptian Prime Minister, is to bring to England to discuss the future of the country.

A Firebrand Spirit

Zaghlul, however, has only himself to thank for his exclusion. His is the firebrand spirit which demands all or none. Adly, more concerned for his country's good than for his own personal advantage, is content to accept something so that they may come later, and his restraining influence has been accepted by all but the extremist elements among the Nationalists.

These latter have rallied gaily to Zaghlul's battle cry, and the first fruits of their enthusiasm are the outbursts in Cairo and Alexandria.

Zaghlul is a forceful personality, the type of a man who leads forlorn hopes. He is a tall, spare, grizzled man of about sixty-five, lean of face and swarthy of skin, with the high cheek bones which mark the Arab.

His calculating manner impresses one as that of a man of domineering and uncompromising character, impatient of restraint, and chafing at any opinion in conflict with his own. He speaks French with some ability, but uses only short, staccato phrases which are curiously accentuated by the harshness of his voice.

His policy is the single one of ousting the British lion from Egypt, and he will accept no concession short of that. He declares that the whole of Egypt is aflame with this revolutionary fire, and apparently he believes it, though he gives no reasons for his belief.

What he has made clear, however, is that he is inspired by unbounded personal ambition, which brooks no interference. He aspires to be the leader of a "Free Egypt," and he has the gift of imparting his enthusiasm in this direction to his followers.

Split Egypt in Two Factions

His quarrel with Adly Pasha has split Egypt into two factions, of which the moderate element remains faithful to the Egyptian Premier, while the Bolshevist party clings to Zaghlul as its deliverer. This party, though, is a small one, but it has already shown itself capable of mischief.

INVESTMENTS

You cannot be too careful how you invest your savings.

Always there is danger of grabbing at the investment which promises the big returns, if worked out satisfactorily.

In such an investment there is usually the element of great chance and a likelihood of the principal being wiped out.

If you feel that you have some money that it will not hurt you to lose, why that is a little different, you can afford to take a chance once in a while.

Why not use a plan something like this:

Invest one-third of your savings in something you know is absolutely safe, like Government bonds. Invest another third in something practically as safe, a little larger interest, and the other third in industrials which promise big returns but which have also the element of chance, because new or untried.

In this way you cannot be left flat, with all your savings gone.

You have satisfied your desire to gamble by using one-third for that very purpose, but of course no one would be silly enough to plunge in the dark simply on a hearsay.

JUSTIFIABLE SUSPICION

"Why don't you try to have more confidence in your husband?" her friend asked.

"How can a man to be trusted, I know, for he made love to me before he had the slightest idea that I would be willing to get a divorce in order to marry him."

STATE STREET ZOOLOGY

"I hear you were speculating in State Street lately. Were you a bull or a bear?"

"Neither. I was a monkey."

TRUE!

Lives of chorus girls remind us
That while oysters are forgot,
From birth of May till August's ending—
The lobster's not.

VOICES IN SPEEDING SUBWAY TRAIN

By Garrett P. Serviss.

WHEN riding in the subway I often listen to the obstreperous but nevertheless fascinating choruses sung by the strange voices that haunt those subterranean trains. Of course, there is a subjective element in the phenomenon, and in order to hear the voices one's mood must possess a certain accord. The mind must be in a meditative attitude.

People whose attention is fixed upon other things are aware only of a pandemonium of noises. It is also possible after the voices are noticed to banish them from the field of attention, or to discriminate them into the unconnected clanks, twangs, creaks, squeals, crashes and roars from which they are constructed.

But, ordinarily, I do not try to ignore them; on the contrary, I invite them, and listen for them to begin. They drown, under their rude, strong waves of harmony, the acoustic horrors of a subway ride. They impart to it a rollicking sense of sociable enjoyment—enjoyment that seems a little defiant. They sing the gallery chorus of the electric slaves that man has chained to his wheels.

Sit Near Door

If you wish to listen for these voices, do not sit too far from the door where two cars join. There is located the larynx; there the clang tones arise. The multiplicity of sounds that give birth to the voices do not blend together and change from noise to music until the train is well under way.

There must first arise a strong, steady swelling undertone, like an accompaniment, to carry and unify the various notes. Transient passages of the train break up the harmony. Not until a certain speed has been attained do the voices become distinguishable, and when the train slows up for a stop they fall apart into jarring noises again.

When I call them "voices" I mean literally what I say as far as tone is concerned. They are like human voices singing with a metallic clang, but not articulating words. They take their time from the swift beating of the wheels upon the rails and get their pitch from the vibrating iron. The walls of the tunneled way make their sound lost.

If you shut your eyes the impression is heightened. Sometimes it is almost impossible to fail to believe that some person near you is singing in accord with the music of the train. Not infrequently I have looked about in search of the supposed singer—and more than once I have found him! In such cases it seems to me that the singer sings in obedience to the same impulse that causes everybody in a crowd who can add to join in a chorus after it has once been started.

Anvil Chorus.

The subway music is like an anvil chorus in its power and clangor, and the effect is sometimes uncanny, as if you were flying with the valkyries. If, as I have suggested, you shut your eyes, and allow your attention to closely follow the phenomenon, you will imagine that you can distinguish between some of the many voices. You will instinctively listen for words, which do not seem to you to be more deeply buried beneath mere sound in the utterances of these mysterious voices than they are in those of many veritable human singers.

It would be interesting to know whether people who readily catch these voices in underground trains are equally apt to see faces in fireplaces and in the clouds. Most persons have a preferential way of remembering—either by sounds or by sights—which would be rather an indication that the coincidence just suggested may not exist.

Kills by Miles

A chemist of the Bureau of Mines recently gave before the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia an account of a new chemical, said to have been developed by a British scientist after three years of research work, that is considered to be the most deadly weapon ever devised by science. It is in the form of a vapor, and it has the alluring name, "Diphenylchloraasine." Its extreme deadliness is enhanced by the fact that it will penetrate any mask.

If airplanes were equipped to carry a tank of this liquid for discharge from nozzles similar to the ordinary street sprinkler, so that it would fall like rain, everything in the path of the plane would be killed. It was stated that one plane carrying two tons of the liquid could cover an area 100 feet wide by seven miles long in a single trip, depositing enough material to kill every man in that area. The liquid can be easily made wherever there is available electrical power, as nearly every nation has practically an unlimited supply of the necessary raw materials—Dr. Henry Smith Williams in July Hearst's International.
